...The last business matter discussed before dismissal was that of repairs and maintenance work on the water tanks at the city lake. Dave Voss was present to answer questions and offer his opinion, according to Voss, about every three or four years, the tanks need interior repainting to protect them from rust. Also jet areas must be repainted.

$11,300 was mentioned as the possible cost of such work. Voss also stated that the order of the two tanks (dating back to 1941) has many pit areas in it, that it really should be replaced, stating that the deck and frame were still in good shape.

The replacement cost would be a considerable amount. Voss stated he "didn't have any idea how much it would be." The matter was placed under consideration.

Fitzgerald 1219 to 224.

Arnold will be hearing cases in the county on Mondays, as opposed to the traditional Tuesday court day. In the past, Arnold will sit in Nicholas Circuit Court three Mondays each month, with Judge G. A. Farnham presiding on the fourth Monday.

Another surprising new face that went to work Monday was Circuit Court Clerk Sally Watkins. Watkins defeated 26-year incumbent Brellah Hughes in a race for that seat.

After an admittedly hectic first day, Watkins said she was "going to love it," as soon as I get organized."

Other newcomers in the political arena this week were Sherri Charles King and Deputy Chuck Smith. They took a tough three-way battle in the Democratic Primary.

Magistrate Elmer Myers and Earl Lee Flannick both joined the fiscal court Monday morning. Myers defeated incumbent Andrew Hirtz in the May Primary, while Flannick had to fight through two re-election bids by Bob Livingston. After being defeated in the Democratic Primary, Livingston came back to run against Flannick as a "write-in" candidate in the November
