Boy Scouts have yard sale

The Carlisle Boy Scout troop will have a yard sale Saturday, June 5 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Church of Christ yard, hoping to raise money for the purchase of tents and camping supplies, according to Assistant Scoutmaster Wilbur Winkle.

"We will accept donations for this yard sale," Winkle said. "We had originally thought we would have an auction, but the types of items we're getting lend themselves more to an outdoor yard sale."

Livingood benefit is success

The square dance benefit at Lake Carmico Sunday raised more than $300 for Delma Livingood, Carlisle club treasurer Dorothy Woosley told the Mercury.

"We're really pleased with the response of the community and the area," Mrs. Woosley said. "We had square dance clubs from Versailles, Lexington, Mt. Sterling, Vanceburg and Paris here Sunday.

About 100 square dancers participated and there were about 150 spectators present at the festivities. A potluck dinner was also held.

The money will go to help pay medical expenses for Mrs. Livingood.

Cox named chairman

Martha Layne Collins, Lieutenant Governor of Kentucky, has announced the appointment of Charles Cox as Girl Scout Fund Drive Chairman in Nicholas County. Mr. Cox attended the kick-off luncheon at the Hyatt Regency in Lexington on May 17 to receive his appointment and to help make plans for the summer campaign.

Girl Scouting is a girl-centered organization that is an integral part of the community. It is a sharing among youth and adult volunteers of an informal education process based on proven ethical values that help expand a girl's horizon.

The money raised from the fund drives is used to provide professional support to volunteers, to pay for program materials, and to provide training and educational opportunities for the adults who are leading our girls.

Kaye Schneider, field director for this area, works with volunteers to see that troops are maintained, and that every girl is given the opportunity to participate in Girl Scouting.

When Mr. Cox or one of the campaign helpers calls on you, please give generously.

Bureau plans for '82 Ag Census

Plans for the 1982 Census of Agriculture are on schedule according to Bruce Chapman, Director of the Commerce Department's Census Bureau.

The census, to be taken starting next January, will provide basic information measuring the trends in number of farms, commodity production, land use, and income levels in agriculture. Chapman indicated that the rapid changes occurring in agriculture due to the declining farm income situation, along with continuing high interest rates, makes the information from the agriculture census extremely important to the nation's policymakers as well as farmers themselves. Chapman points out that complete and accurate responses by farmers will ensure a high quality picture of the agriculture industry to everyone's benefit.

Census forms will be mailed out in late December to 2.5 million farmers and ranchers to collect data for the 1982 calendar year.

They call it "old 365"

On the Falkland Islands, hotly contested these days by Britain and Argentina, sheep is everything. Six hundred thousand of them provide food and clothing for the 1800 inhabitants. Mutton is eaten three times a day and has become known to the Falkland islanders as "old 365." — Photo submitted.

U.S. was involved in Falklands in 1830's

But you wouldn't want to live there . . .

by Boris Weistraub
National Geographic News Service

The last time anyone fought seriously over the Falkland Islands, the United States was there — helping to evict an Argentine settlement and pave the way for British rule.

Big that was nearly 150 years ago. Since then the tiny islands, with a total land area less than the state of Connecticut, have become very British. Until the recent Argentine invasion, the residents drank English lager in their four pubs, fondly remembered Prince Philip's 1957 visit, and avidly looked forward to the annual "Falkland Islands Olympics," pitting East and West Falkland Islanders in such sports as sheep-shearing races.

God Save the Queen

"They're British, 'God Save the Queen' all the way," says Martin Rogers, a photographer who was in the Falklands on assignment for National Geographic in 1979. "They have tea every afternoon, and you have no sense while you're there that South America is only a couple of hundred miles away."

The invasion that broke the tranquility brought the islands out of their recent obscurity into a place in the sun — if the sun shone more frequently than it does there.

The bleakness of the Falklands — or the Islas Malvinas, as the Argentines call them — is a central fact of their life and history. The average wind mean speed on the islands is 16½ knots, there are hardly any trees, and on only about 18 days a year is the sky more than half free of clouds.

So bleak and so far off the world's beaten track are the Falklands that until past
