Bob Watkins

Joe Dean Jr. became the second University of Kentucky basketball assistant coach to leave the program last week...

At his press conference Dean said: "I'm very excited about this opportunity and it's something that I've always longed for since I was a kid..."

Hall's reaction to Dean's departure was predictable. "We are extremely happy for Joe and (wife) Ellen. Joe is one of the outstanding young coaching prospects in the country..."

And yet, according to a source close to UK basketball, Joe Dean never really had a chance to coach even though he was probably the most highly sought after coach in the country...

Division I basketball. Joe was just looking for an opportunity to coach. This was it. UK then was intrinsically in recruiting Chuck Verbeke...

When the affable young coach finished "speaking" for the head job at DePa State last month, he looked to be set for another season at Kentucky...

"Where Joe Dean went is as much a surprise as anything," the source said. "Although Birmingham Southern is a beautiful new school, it's not really a Division I school..."

Starting five West Virginia (Louisville) at center, Louis Dumper (UK) and Darrell Griffith (UK) at guards, Dan Issel (UK) and Rodney McCree (UK) at forwards...

Who are the candidates to fill the UK job vacancy? "One thing's for sure," chortled one UK insider, "Joe isn't going to hire any 'name coach'..."

time table for replacing either University of Kentucky basketball assistant coach Joe Dean Jr. or...

More likely Hall will want to see who applies for the two vacancies and then might use one of the positions as a bargaining chip to get a big man from the high school ranks for next year...

That is, a 6-11, 250-pounder who will be a sales pitch with a possible fringe benefit...

Example: Chambers' Johnny Tall, a 6-11, 250-pound prospect with quick feet and a silky jumper from the loyal to Coach Hall for the opportunity he gave me...
