Unemployment up in Kentucky

Unemployment in Kentucky rose one-tenth of a percent in June, compared with a 0.3 percentage point increase nationally for the same month. At the same time, the number of Kentuckians working rose from May to June by 8,800 and the number of people in the state labor force increased by 13,000.

Figures compiled by the Cabinet for Human Resources show Kentucky recorded a June jobless rate of 10.8 percent, up from 10.7 percent in May. The national nonseasonally adjusted unemployment rate rose from 9.8 percent in May to 10.2 percent in June.

State labor market analyst Ed Blackwell attributed the rise in the unemployment rate to "the annual influx of students and recent graduates into the labor force. Traditionally we see an increase in the unemployment rate in June and July because more young people are looking for work."

Blackwell said, "The increase in the number of Kentuckians who have jobs was primarily due to seasonal agricultural employment rising by 13,200 over last month." He said other notable employment gains occurred in services, where 3,200 more were employed, construction, which recorded a gain of 2,400, manufacturing, where employment was up 1,800, and mining and quarrying, where 900 more people had jobs.

There were 179,800 Kentuckians unemployed in June and 1,481,900 who had jobs, compared to 175,000 unemployed in May and 1,473,100 who had jobs. In June, 1982, when the unemployment rate was 10.3 percent, 173,800 people were unemployed and 1,523,400 had jobs.

Blackwell expects the state's unemployment rate to remain about the same through August, but then drop 10 percent in August or September," he said.

ANTIQUE FARM MACHINERY
AT KENTUCKY STATE FAIR

The University of Kentucky College of Agriculture will bring back a sample of its sizable collection of antique farm machinery. The pieces, including tractors, will be housed in a tent.

State-wide search begun for Ann Gotlib

Jefferson County Judge/Executive Mitch McConnell, chairman of the Kentucky Task Force on Exploited and Missing Children, has announced that the Task Force will distribute information and a flyer statewide concerning 12-year-old Ann Gotlib of Louisville, who has been missing since June 1.

In a letter asking recipients to post the flyer, McConnell indicates that a $15,000 reward has been offered for proven whereabouts of Ann and describes the details of her disappearance.

"We appreciate your concern and whatever help you can be. We are anxious to find Ann alive and well, and we need your help," McConnell writes.

The poster and information will be sent to over 3,000 people who have indicated an interest in the issues of exploited and missing children. The news media also will be sent copies.

"We are fortunate in Kentucky to have a statewide 'network' of people who are deeply concerned about the problems of exploited and missing children. It is our hope that this effort will lead to Ann's speedy and safe return," McConnell said.

Fire destroys car Thursday

Fire Chief Woody Wilson reports a 1973 Chevrolet owned by Donnie Cox, Route 4, caught fire Thursday, July 21, 6:15 p.m., four miles east of Carlisle on the Cassidy Creek Road. The car was a total loss and cause of fire is unknown.

Collision totals car

The sheriff's office reports one wreck the past week.

On Saturday, July 30, on Highway 36, five miles east of Carlisle, a 1979 Camaro driven by William Smith, Route 4, Morehead, rounded a curve and hit a 1979 Dodge driven by Thomas M. Mitchell, Route 2, Sharpsburg. The steering mechanism on the Smith car had failed.

Both cars were totaled and drivers and an occupant in Smith's car were taken to the Nicholas County Hospital.

Two Farms - Farm Machinery - Antiques - Hay
ABSOLUTE AUCTION
Sat. Morning, Aug. 13 at 10:30 A.M.

Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Lemons and Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Lemons feel that they can no longer farm the 154 acres which has been in their family for many years (some in Lemons Family since 1906), and for this reason are selling at Absolute Auction their land, farm machinery, some antiques, hay and numerous other items.

The land is located in Harrison County in the area known as Wagoner's Chapel or Mouth of Cedar. The land is exactly 12 miles from US 62 (12½ miles from Cynthiana) and 29 miles from Lexington. The sale will be conducted at a barn on Lemons Lane, near the Wagoner's Chapel Church (turn off 62 just east of Cynthiana on No. 392, Republican Pike). Food and drinks will be available at the sale.

App. 3,564 feet FRONTAGE ON NORTH LICKING RIVER

Tract No. 1: This Lemons Home Place is at the end of Lemons Lane on the North Licking River. In addition to the farming value of this tract, it has great potential use by sportsman or investors as a lodge, fishing camp, recreational resort or development into smaller tracts each having several hundred feet of North Licking River frontage. This property is just about an hour's drive from Lexington, Kentucky. It is completely private in its location, and in a natural serene setting. The present home would make a perfect fishing camp, or vacation lodge. Tract No. 1 consists of 82.4 acres and is improved with an 8-room frame house (running water); maple outbuildings, and three barns. The Harrison County ASC office shows 21 acres of cropland and estimates the river frontage to be 3,564 feet. Mr. O. C. Lemons raises fine tobacco and corn on this farm, puts up an abundance of hay, and has a livestock and poultry business. These two farms have real farm, investment value. The gross income from the two farms exceeded $20,000 last year.

Tract No. 2: This 72 acre farm is near but not adjoining the 82.4 acres. This land is just off the Lemons Lane with an access road beside the Church, and another access road on down Lemons Lane. There are two barns on Tract No. 2. This 72 acres is ideal for livestock production due to an abundance of grass with ample shade and water. The ASC records show 34 acres of cropland. Land is such a desirable neighborhood with good farms in the area is practically never for sale in the price range per acre of this tract. This 72 acre farm offers anyone an opportunity to buy good producing land at a minimum price per acre. Land is very seldom sold in this area, so an investment in this 72 acres should be a wise and profitable investment.

Sale Procedure and Terms: Each farm will be sold separately, by the acre, and the two farms will not be combined. Tract No. 1 will will sell first. Down payment on day of sale will be $10,000 on No. 1 and $5,000 on No. 2. Possession and deed will be given in 30 days, with sellers retaining rights to finish growing crops. Sellers will retain 1983 crops and will pay all of 1983 taxes. The 1983 tobacco quotas are; 2,046 lbs. for Tract No. 1 and 3,313 lbs. for Tract No. 2.

Immediately following the sale of the two farms the following personal items will be sold for Cash:

Antiques: Several antique tools, old wheat cradle, 26 inch draw knife, small draw knife, 2 eye hoes, old time grain reap hook, old stillard scales, dining pot hook, tack puller, cherry bureau, marble top dresser, dresser, cherry night stand, oak kitchen cabinet, maple wardrobe, wood bed, old Edison talking machine, some dishes.

Other: Electric sewing machine, Siegler oil stove, two 275 gallon tanks and some oil, fan, Redwood fishing boat, odd tables, odd chairs, lamps, small tools.

Opinion-- Liberal press slants the news

by S.C. Van Curon

I'm beginning to wonder what the press would do in this country if we had a real national emergency or catastrophe in government.

The furor being raised over the charge that President Reagan had access to Jimmy Carter's briefing papers in the last campaign astounds me. Some writers are calling for a federal investigation as though a treasonable crime had been committed against the country, particularly the Democratic Party.

Even if the charge be true, it shouldn't create the slightest ripple in politics for it is nothing in comparison to the tactics used in other campaigns.

Frankly, I believe there is reason to be concerned that the national news is controlled by liberals out of Washington, D.C. and New York, the nerve centers of the news organizations in this country.

No longer is opinion reserved for the editorial pages and airwaves labeled editorial segments. Opinion splatters all over the place, while objectivity is scarce. I have become a lost demand in the news.

If a writer wants to voice an idea or make charges in the news, he finds someone to quote, or invents a government source or person who "didn't want to be named." There are all kinds of dodges without actually naming a responsible source or person, a source or person who can be held accountable, at least in the public eye.

Television is the worst abuser. Talk about methods of ploys; the tube savants have a bag full of them. Voice inflection, facial acrobatics or even a moment of silence at the proper time can do a lot to praise or condemn a person or action.

Succeeding events and changes in the news patterns are causing me to wonder if the Woodward and Bernstein exposure of the Watergate affair and all its trappings hasn't become a curse that is going to be hard for the news industry to bury. No one today knows who Deep Throat was or is.

It seems there is a preponderance of younger writers who want to emblazon their names in print or engrave their images on the tubes for posterity.

This is the same American press that did little but praise Franklin D. Roosevelt and the Democratic Party for four or more decades and still seems to make special allowances for the party versus Republicans and others.

The press made no uproar when the Democrats in the depression installed Franklin Michelson and his propaganda machine in Washington to destroy Herbert Hoover in the public eye. The press in 50 years and more has never called this transgression a dark page in our political history as it rightly should be labeled.

Neither has the Democratic Party ever apologized for its fabrications against Hoover and society in general. Roosevelt was never man enough to correct the record and make a public apology for character assassination.

This is the same press that created Camelot for John F. Kennedy but failed to utter a word of criticism about his use of information he gained in briefings from the Eisenhower administration on the Cuban situation during his campaign against Richard M. Nixon.

In the debates, Kennedy brought questions that Nixon couldn't explain publicly on television for security reasons. Kennedy knew the answers as well as Nixon and he knew Nixon couldn't make them public.

It's the same press that never mentioned his womanizing, wild parties and other piccadilloes.

It's the same press that made an effort for a short time to probe that tragedy at Chappaquiddick, but soon went on to something else when the Kennedy clan was able to get the judge to seal the papers.

This same press never called for a federal investigation even though Teddy Kennedy was a U.S. senator at the time and mentioned frequently as a possible candidate for higher office.

This same press never raised much noise about the Democrats bugging a Goldwater campaign bus.

It's time to become concerned about the slanted news from the news centers of the press. Is it objective news they are writing at all times, or is considerable time spent grinding an ax?

Mountain Enterprises to pay $112,000 damages

Attorney General Steven L. Beshear and the Kentucky Transportation Cabinet announced July 27 that Mountain Enterprises, Inc., a highway contracting firm, has agreed to pay the Commonwealth of Kentucky $112,000 in damages resulting from a rigged bid on a contract let on June 29, 1983.

On June 1, 1983, Mountain Enterprises, Nally and Gibson Surfacing, Inc. and Edwin Paul Hamilton, president of Nally and Gibson, plead guilty in U.S. District Court to conspiring to rig bids on a subcontract on U.S. 25E. That subcontract was won by a third firm, Bituminous-Virginia Stone Company of Middlesboro, who submitted the low bid, $3,371,150. The prime contractor, Blizard Brothers Construction Corp. of Frankfort won the general contract with a bid of $7,402,000. Mountain Enterprises was fined $150,000, Nally and Gibson was fined $300,000 and Hamilton was fined $50,000 and required to serve 120 hours in community service work.

In this state action, the settlement agreement reached by my office, Commissioner of Highways and Department of Highways Dean Huff and Mountain Enterprises stipulates that Mountain Enterprises will pay the overcharges in three payments over two years, plus interest at the rate established by the state's Road Fund," said Beshear. "Additionally, Mountain Enterprises has agreed to cooperate fully with the Attorney General's Antitrust Division in its continuing investigation of bid rigging on other highway construction contracts in the state."

The company had been removed from the list of qualified bidders by the Department of Highways immediately upon the company's payment of damages and cooperation with the Attorney General.

This case parallels the federal investigation that has reached 37 states. As of March 31, 1983, 408 indictments and 337 convictions were obtained resulting in fines of $44.5 million and jail terms for individuals totaling 46 years. In addition to the recent guilty pleas, seven Kentucky corporations and seven corporate officers were recently indicted by a federal grand jury on charges of rigging bids on state bridge repair projects. One other construction company in Western Kentucky had been indicted but was acquitted.

"The state settlement with Mountain Enterprises represents a major step forward in the Antitrust Division's year long investigation of conspiracy to rig highway construction bids in Kentucky," said Beshear. "We expect the subsequent cooperation of Mountain Enterprises to greatly assist the state in recovering monies owed to the Transportation Cabinet's Road Fund through overcharges caused by other rigged highway construction bids."

In an effort to ensure competitive bidding, the Transportation Cabinet has recently implemented a computerized system to combat collusion by analyzing bids and assisting in project cost estimation. Through this system, bidding patterns are instantly analyzed and suspicious ones referred to the Antitrust Division for further investigation.
