Phone rates

two-party service, and for areas where measured service is not yet available, a lower priced premium service.
"Depreciation has brought choice to the telephone industry," Dickson said. "You can choose a long-distance company, you can choose a telephone equipment supplier, and now many can choose among local service options, too."

These options are particularly important in the face of rising prices. "The fact is that most people and businesses just don't need unlimited premium service," said Dickson. He estimated half of the company's customers would see immediate savings by switching to measured service.

More than 50,000 of the company's Kentucky customers now subscribe to measured service options. The number will continue to grow, he predicted as people learn that measured service fits comfortably into both their calling habits and their budgets.

The lower-priced measured service option will be available to about 90 percent of Bell's customers by year-end, 75 percent by the end of 1985. Proposed local service rates would not vary among telephone exchanges, as they do now. This pricing structure change reflects the higher cost of providing local service in rural areas and smaller communities, where economies of scale that exist in larger calling areas are missing.

The proposed monthly rates are:
— Standard Measured Service, which includes about 18 typical local calls a month for home phones and 100 typical local calls a month for business phones, would be $19.00 for residence customers and $18.00 for business customers.
— Premium Service, which includes unlimited local calls without additional charge: $24.00, residence; $27.00, business.

— Low-use Measured Service, which is for residence subscribers only and has additional charges for each outgoing call, $11.00 a month.
— Where measured service options are not yet available, the rates for residence and business are $22.00 for residence and $21.25 for business.

All the above rates include a charge ordered by the Federal Communications Commission. For residence service that charge is $2 a month, $1 a month for business service.
Dickson said making more Kentucky's telecommunications network ready for the future is another important reason behind this report.

"An automation network that is ready to serve new industries, especially today's growing, service-based economy that depend on moving information over communicating networks — is critical to Kentucky's ability to attract jobs in the years ahead," Dickson said.

Among other changes included in today's proposal are:
— an increase to 30 cents for directory assistance calls beyond the monthly free-call allowance;
— an increase in private line service charges; and — an optional maintenance plan for wiring inside a customer's house or office.

TV PROGRAM DEVOTED TO ART OF HAN CURING
The Kentucky Department of Agriculture has produced a special edition of its television program, "Light & Camera — Agriculture," which is devoted to the art of country ham curing as it is practiced in the state.
"Ham Curing: Kentucky Style" will be televised during August by stations in Paducah, Lexington, Louisville, Hazard, Bowling Green and Campbellsville. Cable systems in Frankfort, Covington, Bowling Green, Louisville, Henderson, Lexington, Paducah and Richmond will also carry the program during the month.

"Wintercare Energy Fund" being established by KU

Kentucky Utilities Company announced Monday that the "Wintercare Energy Fund" is being established to assist those who qualify for assistance with their electric bills.

William B. Beckman, company president, said that KU's customers are encouraged to participate by voluntarily adding $1 or more to their electric bill payment. Or anyone may send a contribution of any amount to the agency which will administer the fund.

"Some of our customers are experiencing difficult times as the result of the recession and we are providing a way for anyone to participate in giving assistance to our neighbors," Beckman said.

"The company has always been concerned about the economic conditions in its service area and we are planning to continue our economic development activities for more and better jobs for Kentuckians. The Community Action Agency in Lexington will be the coordinating office," Beckman said, "but it will be distributed funds throughout the company's service area based upon the number of customers served in each county."

Electric bills will be designed and customers can indicate their desire to make the $1 or more contribution. Beckman explained. The customers should add that amount to their electric bill payments.

KU's president said that all funds collected each month will be forwarded to the Community Action office in Lexington for distribution in cooperation with other Community Action agencies throughout the company's service area. The agencies will establish guidelines to determine who will receive the electric service.

Take time to care!
Kentuckians take care of each other and Nicholas County residents have always lived up to this fine historical tradition. Giving the gift of life by donating a pint of blood is one way each of us can help our neighbor.

"The funds will be studied and contributions can be assured that every dollar will be used to help those persons who qualify for assistance with their electric bills," Beckman said.

"Both KU and Community Action provide their own administrative costs and some of the funds contributed by the Wintercare Energy Fund program will be used for this purpose."

"Anyone who would rather send his dollars direct may make contributions payable to the Wintercare Energy Fund and send them to Community Action, P.O. Box 1818, Lexington, Ky. 40516."

"Even though these funds help only on electric bills, their availability will make other assistance dollars go even further," Beckman concluded.

CCC reunion set
Former members of the old Civilian Conservation Corps Camps (CCC), namely the Ky. CCC, will meet Sept. 8-11 at Cumberland Falls State Park near Paducah to celebrate the CCC's 50th anniversary.

All former members and personnel of any CCC Camp regardless of the state where your duty was served are invited to attend. Family and friends and join the celebration.

For additional information write Leroy Brown, P.O. Box 125, Muldraugh, Ky. 40150, or Bob Kellen, 1100 Grand Street, Sharps, Ky. 40369. For reservation contact Ms. Joanne McConnell, Park Naturalist, Cumberland Falls Park, Corbin, Ky. 40301; phone 662-28-4121.

In the early 80s Carlisle had a 30 camp located on the ridge behind the Nicholas County School.
