Bandaid on my knee

Years ago, he was what the town of Galesburg called a "bandit" and would not be in the same place again. I can close my eyes and see all these years I can still clearly see him. He was tall - 14 years old and six feet three, and looking very well. He weighed all of 160 pounds. Jones was a very beautiful man, but a most interesting one. He always wore a blue work shirt buttoned to the collar, blue bibbed overalls, both shirt and overalls were always clean - starched and ironed. I recall his face as always being red but I think it was because he had dirt far from him. I never know of Jones taking a drink.

SPORTS REPORT

Bob Watkins
really, but I never thought it was necessary to be the first player. Honestly, I think it was to take away from the dream game atmosphere. I'll lose it if I have any other chance to play.
