Foreign saes curb not burley cure-all

President Reagan's Caribbean Basin Initiative, designed to shore up that region's economies against Marxist influence, wasn't a red-hot topic of conversation in burley tobacco circles when he proposed it early last year. But it should be a lively subject with the growers...

Investigation will influence the Reagan administration to take drastic measures. Nor should it. Burley growers are calling for import fees and quotas. But even as staunch a supporter of tobacco as Kentucky's Senator Wendell Ford warns that trade restrictions can...

A very real 'disaster'

More and more of our folks are apparently on the tube these days. Last week Charlotte II in Lexington spent the best part of a day flinging the plumes of a mock night airplane crash disaster near Danville, staged under the direction of Pat Conley, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. Conley of Carlisle.

"Don't worry. If Glenn's nominated, we'll counter his astronaut image by making E.T. your running mate."

Tax hike may be choice

By G. C. Van Curen
FRANKFORT — While the candidates for Governor are not making extensive promises, the tax hike may be a choice of two routes to take if there is a sharp upswing in the economy.

People, however, the courts have stepped the debt around the stump revenue book for all roads and capital construction, building.

Mini-climates... or between hot head and cold feet you have mean temperature.

No, I know why my hot-headed wife has such cold feet. She is standing in a mini-climate.
These little climates are everywhere. If you try thermometer reads zero and the official weather reports in a 10 below, chances are you're both right.

What makes these little compact climates? Temperature differences between land and water, obstructions that channel air flow, variations in solar heat, all these play a part.
One climatologist picked a spot for a new city in Canada that is supposed to save the citizens from frostbite.

From Danes & Moore, a respect engineering firm, comes a memo which reads: "We have been having problems with a trace system working on our Xerox machine."

Control solar radiation and you can cool down a fan. When these temperatures are OK, but they mean more people.
I French people are OK, but they mean more people.
If we have a 50 mph wind on a single day, the state police would collect enough money to buy South Africa.
