Kentucky 4-H receives grant to train leaders

Volunteers who share skills with young people and lead projects or clubs are the right mix of local and state 4-H programs. Kentucky 4-H recently received a grant from the VA that will help keep volunteer leadership going strong.

The grant came in the form of a $7,500 grant from Philip Morris Inc. to support adult volunteer leadership development. This is the fifth year the company has provided funds to Kentucky's 4-H program.

"Philip Morris is well aware of the value of 4-H programs for youth, and adult volunteer leaders contribute a great deal to making 4-H so valuable," said Larry Spivey, director of agricultural programs for Philip Morris U.S.A.

The funds will help send volunteer leaders to state and regional training forums, said Coleman White, state 4-H program director at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

"Leadership training increases the interest in volunteers and the efficiency of volunteers," he said. "The grant makes it less of a financial hardship for volunteers, who are already giving their time."

This year's grant will help support a state 4-H volunteer leader forum scheduled for next March in Louisville which more than 500 leaders are expected to attend. Past grants have helped fund the first state leader forum in March 1982 and have provided part of the cost of sending about 100 Kentucky volunteers to the Southern Regional Leader Forum held each October in Georgia.

The leader forums give 4-H volunteers the chance to learn more about specific subject matter areas and to meet and exchange ideas. Sessions at the upcoming state forum, for example, will include animal husbandry, 4-H programs for the handicapped, agricultural projects, clothing and communication.

Oklahoma Supreme Court, using lecture and workshops, provided an in-depth examination of the extent and limitations of the inherent powers of the judiciary — those powers to command and control the fiscal, physical and human resources that are necessary to carry out the constitutional mission of fairly, necessarily and independently settling disputes.

The judges considered the necessity of reacting to the use of inherent powers, as in citing an individual for contempt of court, the possible consequences of such action, and alternatives that might be taken.

A day of the college was devoted to the study of domestic violence issues and the court's role in relation to the victim and offender in spouse and child abuse. In addition, Dr. Suzanne M. Segal, St. Joseph College Institute for Treatment and Control of Child Sexual Abuse, West Hartford, Conn., discussed how the court can help the sexually abused child. She offered ways the court can modify its process to make it easier for children to relate their testimony without intimidation.

VA debt collection figures are re-evaluated

Some 850,000 veterans who have been overpaid for G.I. Bill education benefits will receive letters from the Veterans Administration advising them of new statistics affecting money owed the government.

The mailing began July 19 and is the second in a series of steps taken by VA in response to a Congressional mandate to intensify collection of 1964 military owed in some 1.2 million accounts. Amounts owed range from several thousand dollars to as little as five dollars, the lowest amount to be targeted for collection. Some of the delinquent accounts are maintained in St. Paul.

All repayments are to be made to the Centralized Accounts Receivable Section in St. Paul. A remittance form is provided with each letter. Local VA regional offices can assist in explaining remittance procedures, but all of the delinquent accounts are maintained in St. Paul.

Dale Kildee, D-MI; Robert Anderson, chairman of Lockheed International; William Saul, president of Renaissance Engineering; and Forrest Carter, secretary emeritus of AASA.

FITZGERALD ATTENDS JUDICIAL COLLEGE

Judge Wayne W. Fitzgerald of the 15th Judicial District attended the 1983 District Judge Judicial College held at Lake Barkley State Park Sept. 11-16. The 67 judges and justices received 22 hours of continuing judicial education credits which will extend toward meeting the biennial 30-hour requirements of mandatory judicial education implemented by the Kentucky Supreme Court earlier this year.

Along with several speakers from around the Commonwealth, two nationally recognized authorities were invited to address the judges on topics particularly concerning the district courts. Justice Marian P. Opala,
