Kay Conley is chosen

Miss Kay Conley was named "Outstanding Greek Woman of the Year" in ceremonies Saturday night at the University of Kentucky.

She was honored again Sunday afternoon during the UK Honors Program.

She was selected from 15 girls nominated. All the fraternities and sororities at UK voted for the nominees based on their activities, leadership, scholarship and popularity.

Miss Conley, a senior journalism student, was president of Alpha Delta Pi sorority this year, a member of Omicron Delta Kappa Leadership Honorary and Sigma Delta Chi Journalism Honorary and Bacchus speaker corps chairman. She was selected as The Greek editor as a sophomore, an honor usually given to only upperclassmen.

MISS CONLEY, a former NCHS sports reporter and photographer for The Mercury before her graduation in 1980, is one of nine UK students who attend classes at a seminar on state government held twice weekly in Frankfort.

As a class assignment, Miss Conley's profile of Rep. Adrian Arnold was the first article to be published outside of the school newspaper. It was carried in The Mercury and several other central Kentucky weekly newspapers.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Conley, she works part-time in the radio and tv office of the Agricultural Extension Service at UK.

After graduation in May, she has accepted a position as form reporter for WHAS Radio in Louisville. Eventually she would like a career in television.

Anderson home destroyed by fire in Frankfort

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Anderson on Strawberry Lane in Frankfort was completely destroyed by fire sometime during the day Friday, April 6.

Mr. Anderson, former Nicholas County FVA, and his wife Linda were at work, and their two daughters were at the home of a baby sitter at the time. The contents of the house were also destroyed. The origin of the fire is not known.

Mr. Anderson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Anderson of Carlisle, informed The Mercury of the fire Tuesday morning.

Misfortune seems to have beset the young Anderson family lately. About a month ago, Linda, daughter of Mrs. Della Dye of Carlisle, who was just recovering from surgery, was on an errand with their oldest daughter, Keeli Jane in the car when they were involved in a wreck that totaled the family car. Fortunately neither were hurt.

Nicholas unemployed now 8.8 percent

The unemployment rate went down in 101 Kentucky counties, including Nicholas, in February as the state's preliminary rate dropped nine-tenths of a percent from January, according to Cabinet for Human Resources figures.

The rate increased in 17 counties and remained the same in two.

Nicholas County figures showed unemployment at 243 persons, or 8.8 percent of the labor force without jobs.

THERE WERE 83 counties reporting a rate of 10 percent or higher, compared to 91 in January. The state rate for February was 10.6 percent, down from January's revised rate of 11.5 percent. Nationally, the rate dropped from 8.8 percent in January to 8.4 percent in February.

Jobless rates in Kentucky's 120 counties ranged from a low of 4.0 in neighboring Bourbon County to a high of 33.2 percent in Russell County.

"Employment was up, while the size of the labor force and the estimated number of unemployed people decreased," said state labor market analyst Ed Blackwell in explaining the drop in the state rate.

"We showed employment gains in agriculture; manufacturing; state and local education; transportation, communications and public utilities; and the category we label 'all other non-agricultural employment,' which includes people who are self-employed, unpaid family workers, and domestic workers in private households," he said.

"Total employment grew from 1,525,000 in January to 1,577,300 in February and was 85,300 higher than the 1,442,000 who were working in February 1983. Meanwhile, 181,000 Kentuckians were unemployed in February, compared to 198,400 in January and 244,000 in February 1982, when the unemployment rate was 14.5 percent," Blackwell said.

Kay's Kitchen

By Kay Fisher

This week we are going to think about salads for the Easter dinner. A frozen salad and some congealed salads, all can be made ahead of time to make things easier. Remember, you can unmold the congealed salads an hour or more before serving time and return to refrigerator to save that last minute worry of knowing if the salad will slip properly from the mold. It will, if you just dip the mold in hot water for just a second or two, loosen the edges with a knife and invert onto platter.

To serve the frozen salads, remove from freezer and refrigerate about 20 minutes before cutting into squares to serve. Besides being hard to eat, an icy salad doesn't have much flavor.

FROZEN STRAWBERRY SALAD

2 1-pound boxes frozen sliced strawberries
1 large and 1 small package of cream cheese
1 large carton and 1 small carton whipped topping
3 cups small marshmallows
Let cream cheese come to room temperature, whip until fluffy, add strawberries and mix well. Fold in thawed topping and marshmallows. Turn into individual molds, or large flat container so salad can be cut into squares.

FROSTY PEAR SQUARES

1 6-ounce container whipped cream cheese
½ cup dairy sour cream
½ of a 6-ounce (⅓ cup) frozen limeade concentrate, thawed
2 tablespoons sugar
Few drops green food coloring, optional
½ cup whipping cream
1 29-ounce can pear halves, drained and diced
½ cup flaked coconut
Leaf lettuce

Blend together cream cheese, sour cream, limeade concentrate, sugar and food coloring. Whip cream; fold into cream cheese along with pears and coconut. Spread in 8x8x2-inch pan. Cover and freeze overnight. Remove from freezer 10 minutes before serving. Cut into squares; serve on lettuce.

MOLDED VEGETABLE SALAD

2 tablespoons gelatin (2 packages)
1 cup clear chicken broth
1 cup mayonnaise
½ cup very small cooked potatoes (or cubed cooked potatoes)
½ cup broken or small green beans, cooked
½ cup diced cooked carrots
½ cup cooked green peas
2 tablespoons chopped fresh parsley
While wine vinegar, or lemon juice to taste
Salt and pepper to taste
Hard-boiled eggs, large black, pitted olives or cherry tomatoes for garnish
Sprigs of fresh herbs

Disolve gelatin in ½ cup cold water over very low heat, until gelatin is hot and clear. Cool a bit.

Add gelatin to chicken broth and mayonnaise. Stir well. Add vegetables and parsley. Add vinegar or lemon juice, salt and pepper to taste. Adjust seasoning.

Pour into a lightly oiled mold or loaf pan. Chill in refrigerator until set. Unmold on bed of crisp lettuce and garnish with hard-boiled eggs, black olives or cherry tomatoes, and sprigs of fresh herbs. If you have something different use them or you may use parsley sprigs.

You may serve this as the main luncheon, or brunch dish. Just add a platter of cold sliced roast beef, smoked tongue, cold turkey or chicken. If you feel the need of something warm, serve hot broiled chicken breast and a hot bread, rolls or muffins.

Next week I will give you some spring vegetables, as you might want to start thinking about what kind of meat to serve. The salads and vegetables given will go nicely with either chicken, beef or ham.

'Duffy' debuts!

Child-like dragon instructs young surgical patients

"Duffy the Dragon," a new cartoon character designed by animater Lock Wolverton, shares with young viewers his fears about surgery in a short feature film being implemented at Johnson-Mathers Health Care in Carlisle this week.

In fact, Duffy made his first appearance here Wednesday when Mike Ecton, 4, son of Mr. and Mrs. Phil Ecton, underwent a tonsilectomy.

According to Mrs. Peggy Seitbers in patient-education at Johnson-Mathers, the local hospital is the first in this part of the country to adopt the newly-conceived program.

"Just what I thought, Duffy. You have an ailment," the doctor tells the lovable dragon in one of the first scenes. "Once we operate, you'll feel just like your old self again."

"Operate!...But that'll hurt me bad!" the suspicious, child-like dragon replies.

THE 14½ MINUTE featurette walks the pediatric patient through all the anxiety of being ill, needing an operation, and the myriad of hospital procedures prior to surgery. This first of a planned series is designed to ease the jitters of those patients and their families during all types of surgery and turns the experience into a "positive."

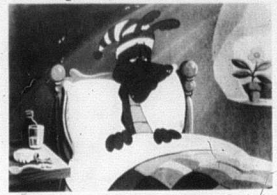
Consultation was provided by a number of professionals in the medical field during production. Technical input was received from surgeons, pediatric nurses, psychologists and child life specialists in an effort to get just the right feeling into the film.

In the final scenes, Duffy is cured and all ends 'happily ever after' with Duffy reminding everyone not to be afraid when facing surgery.

ACCORDING TO Mrs. Seibers, the Duffy program includes a number of "really nice" accessories which are being used here to augment the children's experiences. T-shirts, coloring books, records and pins to wear are all imprinted with the Duffy character.

YOUNGEST FIRST LADY

The youngest First Lady in the White House was Frances Folsom Cleveland. She married the President in the Blue Room when she was 21 years old.



'Duffy' debuts here

"Duffy the Dragon' is a new cartoon character featured in a movie designed to prepare pediatric patients for surgery. He debuted here Wednesday in a tonsilectomy performed on young Mike Ecton, 4.
