"Here's why electricity is the Power of Choice."

"Prices of practically everything have risen since the 1973 oil embargo — and energy costs have been especially hard hit.

"But the price of electricity hasn't risen nearly as fast as other fuels. And KU's residential electric rates have not increased as much as the national average.

"Experts predict that electricity price increases will continue to be less than those of other fuels in the years to come.

"Our rates are among the lowest in the nation. But even so, you have the power to control your energy costs by using electricity wisely. Our home energy audits and free brochures will show you ways to save energy and money.

"If you're concerned about a reliable, efficient energy source for now and in the future, choose electricity. We're concerned about the same thing and we're working hard to keep the cost of reliable electric service as low as possible — now and in the future."
