Tramp sign painter

I wouldn't have to come back and hazard the camp corner after all. The early birds arguing back and forth in the trees brought me fully awake. I looked at my watch and it was almost six o'clock. I got up, splashed cold water on my face, dressed, then went across the street to the cafe where I had a huge breakfast of pancakes, sausage and a side order of hash browns. When I washed up (the cash register) to pay, the man asked, "You that sign painter that done such a purty barn a-town yesterday?"

I said I was.

"What would you charge to paint me a menu on this wall with maybe some kind of a farm scene or something in the center. Could you do that?"

(Now every roving sign writer has a few scenes of calendar art in his repertory. It is just SOP and takes no great artistic talent at all.)

We agreed on a price as I went back to the Shady Nook and told the owner that I wanted to keep the room for another night. In fact, it was in the afternoon of the third day that I left the town but I was $140 richer, well fed and with a full tank of gasoline.

I crossed the big muddy Mississippi River at Memphis into Arkansas. I could easily see why it was called "the Father of Waters," just over a mile wide at that point. I stopped in West Memphis, bought a Coke, borrowed a road map of Arkansas and finally decided to head west and south into Wynne. It was night when I reached Wynne. I found a tourist court and spent the night there. I had thought about throwing down my bedroll on some nearby farmoff road and sleeping under the stars but some distant flashes of lightning in the west caused me to change my mind and a good thing I did for it did rain that night, not much but enough to have made it a miserable night trying to sleep under the stars.

Somewhere between Wynne and Conway, Arkansas, on highway 64 I breakfasted at a roadside restaurant and after talking with the cook and staff see there was no business here for me to ask a full commission. I reached the pleasant town of Conway and upon approaching the second city I ran into a gasoline station with a "Blue Hat" gas for 13 cents a gallon and had a quart of oil drawn from a square metal tank into a glass jar with a spout fastened screwed on the jar top and poured into my car for 16 cents (three cents more than a gallon of gasoline fort cost).

From Conway I went south on highway 64 toward Little Rock. I could soon see that I was on a main highway from the increasing flow of traffic. I had traveled perhaps five or six miles from Conway when I saw the hitch hiker in the-shoulder of the highway. He wasn't standing with the usual raised thumb but was waving his arm up and down like a flagman at a crossing. I ran past him a few yards before I could stop.

He was a middle-aged burlap sack from the ground and approached me at a shuffle somewhat between a limp and a slow trot. As he came abreast of the paint wagon I could see he was an old black man. I opened the door and let him in, waited for him to deposit his sack on the floorboards and get settled on the seat before moving forward.

"Where are you going, Grandfather?" I asked.

His voice rattled as he spoke, "I'se gwine down here to Liberty Junction. Is you from there?"

"No, I am a stranger here. I am from Alabama. I am a sign painter just traveling through the country. Is Liberty Junction your home?"

"Yassir, I stay there. You also is a long way from home and mighty young, too. What's yo name?"

"My name is Bill Cochran. What is your name?"

"Bill Cockin. Bill Cockin. A right funny name Mr. Bill, don't you think?"

Henry who. What is your other name?"

"That my second name, too."

"Wait a minute now. Your first name is Henry, your second name is Henry."

"Thass right."

"I think you are trying to pull my leg, aren't you"

"I ain't tech yo leg son. Henry my last name too."

"This is ridiculous. You name is Henry Henry Henry?"

"Thass right. I be 90 soon now and that always be my name. Yassir".

"OK, if you say so. What's in your sack?"

"That old tow sack I pull on de road. Some coffee grinds, a little piece of old meat and some lard."

We rode for a number of miles or so then he pointed a bony finger down the road and said, "Ahead 'bout a road fork off to the right that go to Liberty Junction. I'll get out there and I'se am obliged to you. You a mighty fine young man. Ain't many who would pick up a ragy old man lak me. I think you she must be a Christian. Is you?"

"Well, I hope so, Grandfather. I hope so."

"I think you is, and if I don't see you no mo. I'll see you on the other side."

"There that road yander. Ain't no more than a half mile to the junction."

I let the old gentleman out and watched him as he shuffled on his way toward Liberty Junction. Liberty Henry Henry.

Sargent, Booth elected to SS board

Gordon Sargent and Danny Booth were elected to the local board of directors at the Southern States annual membership meeting held March 2. Over 200 stockholder-members and their families attended the session.

James C. Lowe was selected chairman of the local board, while Samuel C. Reynolds was named as vice-chairman.

Elected to the local Southern States Farm Home Advisory Committee were Mrs. Gordon Sargent and Mrs. Bobby Sexton.

Mrs. Danny Booth was chosen chairman of the committee while Mrs. Samuel C. Reynolds was named secretary.

Elected as delegate and alternate to a district election meeting to be held this fall were James C. Lowe and Samuel C. Reynolds.

Lee L'Hote of Lexington, a member of Southern States Cooperative regional staff, reported on the overall Southern States operations. This report also included a slide-tape presentation entitled "Southern States: 100 Percent You," which focused attention on the fact that Southern States is first and foremost people. Every person involved with Southern States — patron, employee or supplier — is responsible for making the cooperative work effectively. The needs of farmers keep changing and it's up to each individual to help Southern States meet those needs.

The report on local operations and services rendered to farmer members in the community was given by Mrs. Sue Raney, manager of Southern States Carlisle Cooperative. She reported that total volume for their operation for the past year was about $736,000.

There was also a special recognition ceremony for new members, Farm Home Advisory Committee members, as well as those from these groups who were retiring. These included Douglas Fryman, Eugene Letcher and Quinten Moreland, board members, and Mrs. Frank Jolly and Mrs. David Smoot, FHAC members.

Other highlights of the meeting included awarding the grand prize to Chester Goldy, and first place selection in the Share A Craft display was Mrs. Hanson Ellington's afghan with alternate selection being Mrs. Gladys Shrout's woven basket.

Mr. Lowe recognized special guests at the meeting. They were Jere Cannon, District II director on Southern States Cooperative Board, Turner Gravett, regional feed supervisor, and Bill Pine, regional farm supplies supervisor of Lexington.

Area colleges offer summer programs

EKU WILL AGAIN OFFER COLLEGE WARMUP THIS SUMMER

High school seniors graduating this spring can jog into a college atmosphere in a special program at Eastern Kentucky University, June 18-Aug. 3.

College Warmup will again offer students seven college credit hours prior to their freshman year, according to Sherry Hall, director of the program.

College Warmup will give students foundation courses in English composition, college reading and study skills, and orientation before they attempt their first full semester of college. The program will also offer an honors English composition course for the first time, enabling honor students to satisfy the normal requirement of six hours of English composition by taking the three-hour honors course.

Credits earned can be transferred to another college or applied directly to a degree program at Eastern. Thus, College Warmup can assist all high school seniors, but especially those who want a constructive start to their college careers, wish to strengthen their language and study skills, or are not sure about a college major, said Hall.

"Students will be given academic and vocational counseling, as well as the opportunity to develop skills and habits necessary for the successful completion of college courses," he said.

Information about enrolling in College Warmup may be obtained from Hall, who is an assistant professor in the Department of Learning Skills. Any student considering applying to the Warmup program should have a composite ACT score of at least 14 and a high school grade point average of at least 2.2 (C plus) on a 4.0 scale.

Registration will be held on Eastern's campus at 9 a.m. in the Grise Room of the Combs Building, June 18.

'PROJECT CHALLENGE' FOR GIFTED STUDENTS BEGINS JULY 15 AT MSU

Gifted high school students will face learning challenges and earn college credit during the third annual "Project Challenge" this summer at Morehead State University.

The program is designed for students from the 8th-11th grades who are interested in English, math, science and social science.

Last year's director, Dr. Steve Young, associate professor of education, said the program challenges gifted students beyond public school programs.

Coordinators from area schools also will attend the 15-day workshop to learn organization of advanced programs for gifted students.

Project Challenge begins July 15, during MSU's second summer session. The cost is $300 and enrollment is limited to 45 students. Students earn two to three hours of college credit.

The fee covers tuition, room, on-campus meals, instructional materials, lab fees, recreation, health services and an accident insurance policy.

Applications and other information are available from Dr. George Troutt, Box 1305, MSU, (606) 783-2356, Morehead, Ky. 40351. High schools must nominate participants for the course and students must take a qualifying examination.

OUTSTANDING STUDENTS ELIGIBLE FOR BEREA SUMMER PROGRAM

Berea College is accepting applications for its 1984 summer program for outstanding high school students, including those in Nicholas County.

This summer's Rising Seniors Program, open to students who have completed the junior year of high school with a B average, consists of college-credit courses in Wildlife Biology, Creative Writing, Elementary German, Mathematics and Critical Issues for Black Americans. The four-week session, which allows students to do intensive study in one subject, begins June 10 and continues through July 6.

Each course offers one college credit, the equivalent of four semester hours. The per student cost of $204 covers room and board, use of college facilities, insurance, health service and activities fees. Some full or partial scholarships are available, and each student will receive pay for participation in Berea's on-campus work program. The college library, tennis courts, pool and gymnasium, as well as planned activities, are available.

Applications and additional information are available from Charles E. Morgan, Rising Seniors Admission, CPO 2344, Berea College, Berea, Ky. 40404. Students from Berea's nine-state admissions territory, especially those with limited financial resources, will receive preference in admission to the summer program.

Bass tournament to begin March 25; schedule listed

The first Mountain Division competition on the 1984 Red Man Tournament Trail will bring up to 360 bass anglers to Watts Bar Lake on March 25. Entry deadline is March 14.

The Watts Bar Lake tournament at Newport Resort/Hidden Cove is one of six events scheduled for East Kentucky/East Tennessee fishermen. The five other Mountain Division events scheduled between April and September are:

— Lake Cumberland at Conley Bottom near Monticello, April 29;

— Cave Run Lake at Clay Lick near Morehead, June 3;

— Ft. Loudon Lake at Ft. Loudon Dam near Knoxville, July 1;

— Herrington Lake at Bryant's Camp near Danville, July 21;

— Dale Hollow Lake at Star Point Resort near Albany, Sept. 8.

This year, the Red Man Tournament Trail is expanding from 10 to 15 geographical divisions. Each division has six tournaments, bringing the national total to 90 tournaments. These events lead to a year-end Red Man All American Bass Championship worth nearly $200,000 in cash and merchandise.

To compete in tournament events, a fisherman must join Operation Bass. A $50 per year tournament entry fee is charged; all entry fees are paid back in prizes.

For membership information, call or write Operation Bass, Route 2, Box 748, Gilbertsville, Ky. 42044; telephone 503-363-4880.

NEW BASS SIZE LIMIT IN EFFECT AT TWO KY. LAKES

A new size limit on black bass taken from the Kentucky portions of Kentucky and Barkley lakes is now in effect, according to Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources regulations.

Bass fishermen at these two Western Kentucky lakes may keep only one bass under 14 inches long. All other bass in the daily creel limit of 10 fish must be at least 14 inches in length, measured from the tip of the lower jaw to the longest tail fin.
