Students tour state capital

Eighth grade students at NCES were in Frankfort March 7 to tour the capital building, the old capital building and the Kentucky Historical Society Museum. Pictured are Mrs. Clay s and Mrs. Hamm s homerooms in the nave of the capital. This shot was taken across the rotunda. — Photo submitted

Art museum hosts exhibition

The Cincinnati Art Museum will present the exclusive United States showing of a major, international loan exhibition, "The Mystic North: Symbolist Landscape Painting in Northern Europe and North America, 1890-1940," from March 31-May 13 in Eden Park.

Tickets, available at the door and including museum entrance fees, will be $3.50 for adults over 18, $2.50 for senior citizens and college students and $1.50 for children ages three to 18. Museum members will be admitted free of charge. On Saturdays, when admission to the museum is free, exhibition tickets will be $1.50 for all adults and 75 cents for children.

"The Mystic North" brings together for the first time landscape paintings by European, Canadian and United States artists whose work reflects a shared response to the poetry and mystery of vast wildernesses of the north. The paintings explore the lonely grandeur of nature almost untouched by human presence.

Gina Sibert and Cliff Ramsey locate their hometown on a map at the Kentucky Historical Society Museum. These students were part of a group that traveled to Frankfort on March 8 to see the legislature in session. — Photo submitted

Kindergarten conducts search

Anne Baird's morning Kindergarten class discovers the Gingerbread man. Mrs. Baird has her students search throughout the elementary school as a means of acquainting them with the building. — Photo submitted

Among the residents present were Norman Wills and J.B. Laytart, who have appeared before Council twice before concerning the bridge.

According to Mayor Hughes, the ownership of the bridge is not clear. In a conversation on Monday Cartmell Lester had with Allen Justice of the state highway department in Flemingsburg, he learned that records show that the bridge was turned over to the Fiscal Court in 1972. No record has been found to indicate when or if it was turned over to the city, although the city has assumed responsibility for the bridge for many years.

It was also learned from Justice that in his estimation, repair to the bridge to bring it up to a three-ton limit capacity would be approximately $6,000. He advised applying for state money (if any is available) instead of federal, due to the stringent regulations the federal government requires on bridge construction. Justice also informed Lester that the mayor must write a letter requesting engineering consultation on repair or construction before anything can be done. Lester is going to hand deliver the letter to Jim Brown in Flemingsburg Wednesday afternoon.

Mayor Hughes pledged to the Dorseyville citizens, "If I live to the end of the week, I'll have an answer on this."

Water District objects

In reference to the city's recent agreement to allow Nate Young and Dr. Osias Villaflor to hook up to the city water line, the city received a letter from Charles Watkins, chairman of the Nicholas County Water District.

In part it states, "...properties of these people lie within the geographical boundaries of the Water District and not the City of Carlisle. Under the terms of Water Purchase Contract dated Jan. 27, 1966, entered into by the City and the Water District, which contract was extended to Jan. 1, 2020 by extension agreement dated Oct. 8, 1979, the City cannot furnish water service to persons outside the city limits except to customers so served as of the date of the Water Purchase Contract."

"...please advise the Water District if the City decides to extend water service to persons outside of the city limits."

Young was present at the meeting. The mayor had been advised that someone from the Water District would also be at the meeting. However no one was present. The matter is under consideration by the Council.

Other business

Charles Fay suggested that tickets be written for persons not having purchased a city sticker. If not paid, these persons will be cited to court.

Gayle Vandaslandingham has contacted the state highway department in Flemingsburg concerning water standing in front of the home of Della White in Henryville. An engineer is scheduled to inspect the road and sidewalk conditions.

Bobby Barnett moved to give Community Action $250 for the Garden Action Program. Seed is purchased with the money and given to elderly persons so that they may raise a garden at their homes.

Tobin co-chairs Hart campaign

Mary Ann Tobin, State Auditor of Public Accounts, announced Monday that she has accepted the position of state co-chairperson of Senator Gary Hart's campaign for the Democratic nomination for the presidency.

Representative Terry Mann, D-Newport, is co-chairman of Hart's Kentucky campaign.

"I believe Senator Gary Hart is the only Democratic candidate who can beat Ronald Reagan," Ms. Tobin said.
