ASCS provides list of hay available

Due to the widespread drought conditions last summer ASCS is providing assistance to livestock producers in locating hay and other feedstuffs in the area.
Producers with excess hay or other feedstuffs will be listed and asked to contact their local ASCS Office.
A list is being maintained at the local ASCS Office (old Army building) providing names of producers with hay or feedstuffs for sale.
Persons may contact the local ASCS Office at 28-2929 to obtain a list of these producers.

Adrian Arnold sets the record straight!

During the campaign two issues seemed to be discussed the most; these are jails and legislative retirement. Both were grossly misrepresented and misunderstood.
First we'll discuss jails...
I am pleased to have been able to help our counties get funding to build jails so they can lock up criminals, rather than have them walking the streets.
In 1981 the Federal courts told the counties about the conditions of their jails — "Fix them up or close them up."
Most of the jails in this area were around 100 years old and little maintenance had been performed over the years. The counties and the county judge, fiscal court members and the county jailer were personally liable for the condition of the jail.

The County officials came to Frankfort and asked the legislators to draft standards that would help keep them out of Federal court.
In a cooperative manner both the counties and state worked out a plan to solve the problem, with very little cost to the taxpayers.
Court fines were increased $10.00 and the money goes to renovate old jails and construct new ones.
Thus the criminal is paying for jail reform.
Recently Bath County was approved for a grant of $42,000.00 and Montgomery for $50,000.00. This money does not have to be paid back to the state.
A $30,000 grant for Nicholas County jail, requested by Fiscal Court, is to be approved at the June meeting of the jail construction authority.
Jail reform was not started to cater to criminals, but to protect the counties from a lawsuit. A recent Federal law suit cost Campbell County over $400,000.00.
The accusations that renovated or new jails are holiday Inns or country clubs was unfounded. They are only concrete and steel bars with fire alarm systems, two fire exits, heat and proper ventilation, to meet the fire and life safety code.

As the public demands longer and stiffer sentencing and as the legislation and the courts impose longer terms of incarceration we will have to build more jails and prisons if we are going to lock up all the criminals.
The second issue is legislative retirement...
I, too, feel that the legislation retirement is more than it should be and should be reduced.
One misconception is that a legislator can serve 2-3 1/2 years and retire. This is not true...
To receive full benefits an individual must serve 20 years and be age 60.
A legislator must serve 5 years to be vested (same for state employees.)
Any retirement with less than 20 years is prorated.
Another misconception is that a legislator only works 60 days in 2 years. The Kentucky constitution calls for a 90 day session every 2 years. With a modern day legislature, a member must serve full time with part time pay.
It is a shame that many other more important issues were not mentioned such as: the future of our agriculture industry, the future of our educational system, the protection and promotion of our senior citizens and children, the health of our citizens, our need for economic growth to provide jobs for our people and many, many other important issues.
I hope these true facts clear up some of the falsehoods that have been circulated during this campaign.
