Bob Watkins' UK Sports Report

Top 100

According to Knoxville News-Sentinel sports writer Ken Mink's annual review of the country's Top 100 high school basketball seniors released last week, Indiana had the best recruiting season for 1984.

IU recruits—led by Hoosier Mr. Basketball 6-4 Delray Brooks and 6-3 Joe Hillman of California, averaged more than 120 points per game last winter. According to Mink a number of schools were "right behind the Hoosiers" however in "blue chip signees," including Kentucky (4), and three each for Louisville, Maryland, Auburn, Pittsburgh, Purdue, Iowa and Notre Dame.

Top player in the U.S.? Mink says it is Danny Manning, a 6-11 Kansas signee. No. 2 is LSU-bound John Williams, and No. 3 is "up-in-the-air" Cedric Henderson.

For schools in our area (Mideast), Kentucky fans will be the most surprised. According to Mink's ratings the UK coaching staff did not land the bumper crop many of us thought.

UK signees: No. 31 Ed Davender, No. 43 Cedric Jenkins, No. 61 Richard Madison, and No. 78 Robert Lock. Of course, 7-4 West German Gunther Behnke was not rated and Todd Ziegler is not among the country's top 100.

U of L signees: No. 4 Kevin Walls, No. 20 Mike Abrame and No. 87 is Herbert Crook.

WKU signees: No. 27 is Steve Miller and No. 50 is Fred Tisdale.

Indiana: No. 7 is Brooks, No. 33 is 6-8 Brian Sloan, No. 48 is 6-7 Steve Eyl and No. 84 is Hillman.

More on Mink's Top 100 next week.

Coin flip/$5

A coin flip worth millions. That was the name of the lame last week when the NBA Houston Rockets won rights to first choice in the NBA draft June 19. The Rockets will choose Akeem Olajuwon. The Portland Trailblazers lost the flip, but may do just as well if owner Larry Weinberg follows his contingency plan to pick Kentucky's Sam Bowie. The former UK All-American was in Portland Friday for a physical.

The Houston Rockets? Owner Charlie Thomas 'exam payroll aside, the Rockets certainly look to have a star quality when Olajuwon suits up alongside 7-4 Ralph Sampson?

Bowie or Jordan

Weinberg made an interesting analogy after he lost the coin flip for the No. 1 pick in the NBA draft. He said his team is "very interested" in Bowie for the No. 2 pick, but Michael Jordan figures into his plans as well. Bowie or Jordan? "It's like asking if you like Michael Jackson or Robert Goulet as a singer. They do different things well," Weinberg said. "Michael Jordan (of North Carolina) is going to be a superstar in the NBA. We have to consider him although our principal need is at center."

Bright future

Those words seem to fit best for all five University of Kentucky basketball seniors.

■ Dicky Beal returned from an NBA tryout camp in Chicago recently. He is waiting for the June 19 draft. Meantime, the popular little guard reportedly has been offered a "lucrative" contract by a Lexington television station in advertising sales. "Beal's a hot item," said a Lexington source. "He has personality, wit and smarts. Being black these days makes him a choice plum too for equal opportunity employers."

■ Sam Bowie is expected to be among the first five players drafted by the NBA June 19 with Melvin Turpin to follow soon after.

■ Jim Master, if he does not catch on with an NBA club, may be on his way to a "position" with Seth Hancock at Claiborne Farms.

■ Tom Heitz has apparently already returned to his job in the commodity stock market in Chicago. Even with Bowie and Turpin's big bucks for playing pro ball, Heitz could be the earliest success story of the lot.

A postscript here. The Indiana Pacers may be interested in Dirk Minniefield, the 1982 UK playmaker who played for the CBA Louisville Catbirds last winter. Reports are that Minniefield will be asked to a Pacers tryout camp this summer.

Hall recounts NCAA

UK coach Joe B. Hall talked about the Kentucky-Georgetown game last week in an interview with a Louisville reporter.

Hall said he had seen the video tape of the game "...in my mind, in my waking hours and in my sleeping hours. I can justify a certain amount of poor shooting. But there is no way you can pile all of those things up and have three of 33. There's just no way. It was just one of those things that happens in sports that makes sports interesting."

Contrary to the feelings of many Kentuckians, Hall said he did not consider the season a failure. "What this team did is put it among the elite as Kentucky basketball is concerned. Only eight teams in the history of (University of) Kentucky basketball have gone to the NCAA Final Four. There have been some great teams that didn't. Dan Issel's group never did, and one season they were ranked No. 1 in the country nearly all year. Our 1977 team was a good team that didn't make it."

About his contract extension for another five years, Hall said, "I don't see how a guy could say I'm going to be so tired in three years that I'm going to get out, or I'm going to feel great and go the next 10 years. I'm just taking it as I go, and I feel good, and I'm enthusiastic and I'm looking forward to next year. As long as I do that, I want to coach."

Next season will be quite a challenge Hall said. "We're going to be very young. We've lost starters in the last two years, turned the whole ball club over. It's going to change our whole look. There's no doubt we'll have quality players, but they'll be very young. It'll definitely be a rebuilding year. Defensively, we don't look very strong, and that concerns me. The guards we have coming back didn't score that much last season. I'm sure Kenny Walker will be able to score more without Sam (Bowie) and Melvin (Turpin)."

Nicholas kids 'take to the woods'

More than 22,000 Kentucky youth between the ages of nine and 19 are expected to take part in the 4-H Summer Camp program at five locations throughout the state.

Nicholas County youngsters will be spending the week of July 16-20 at North Central camp at Lake Carnico.

Sharon Wilson, Nicholas County 4-H agent, said there are still openings available. Parents interested in sending their children to 4-H camp should call 289-2213 to make reservations.

Participation in the camping program is not limited to those already active in 4-H. In fact, Dwight Crum, 4-H program specialist with the College of Agriculture Cooperative Extension Service at the University of Kentucky, said the camping program is an excellent way for young people to become involved in 4-H.

"The camping program is open to any interested Kentucky youth, and we'd be happy to welcome some new members into 4-H as part of this program," Crum said.

CAMPS this year will feature a range of indoor and outdoor activities, from basketball to basket weaving and from canoeing to computers.

Swimming, volleyball and basketball have been traditional favorite camping activities, and this year soccer will be included.

Nature trails dotted with informative signs will help young naturalists learn about the trees and flowers of Kentucky.

Computer buffs will have a chance to try their skills on one of several microcomputers and any of the 70 programs on topics ranging from energy, cars, money or Kentucky resources to food and nutrition and even astronomy.

The annual camping program is designed to help develop inquiring minds, an eagerness to learn, positive attitudes and a sense of self-worth.

At camp young people learn, to live and work together in an environment in which nobody has a "home turf" advantage over anyone else.

All the camps are staffed with state-certified emergency medical technicians and Red Cross certified lifeguards.

Coldiron, Young rank in state track finals

Competing in the State Track and Field Class A finals Saturday in Lexington, Phillip Coldiron finished fourth in the 300M low hurdles and Rocky Young finished sixth in both 110M high hurdles and long jump events.

Coldiron posted a time of 40.64 compared to the winning time of 39.65 set by Teddy Bosey of Ft. Knox.

Young's 16.76 in the high hurdles was bested by St. Mary's Don Overstreet at 15.99.

In the long jump, Young registered 19-11½ compared to the winning 22-0 and three quarters effort by Bardstown's David Johnson.
