Overheard at Hildreth

Visitors comment, reminisce

By Hazel Bryant

Visitors found tears at the Hildreth School both educational and nostalgic. Looking at the files on the teacher's desk, they commented that when they were children they never dreamed that some day it would be illegal to read the Bible and pray. Others thought it was a pity that they had been prohibited in public schools.

ONE BETTERED teacher said he regrets that he had seen a big attraction. One person said that her teacher tapped the bell once to stand, twice to turn around, and the fourth ring was to be seated. The same process was used for dismissal.

Young children found the hickory stick a curiosity. A former pupil said that he got the hickory stick for getting Anne Hickman's gaiters in the hallway.

Women reminisced about a playhouse made of rock complete with furniture. They talked about playing handkerchief, hide and seek, tag and Farmer in the Dell, men and men of playing softball in one corner of the yard.

Everyone laughed when an elderly man told of letting the teacher's hickory shoe.

MANY VISITORS of an elderly beauty saw the hair, and of dating the road in their way home to gather hair, wild grapes laid to swing in vines.

One old woman said they rubbed to school. One woman told how she walked in the brother's tracks when the snow was deep and made icy.

Visitors listened eagerly while a retired teacher told how she also used a lot of waste paper and had to get a quick fix, and after employing a sack of coal in the big stove, she ran to the outdoor to refill her bucket. It was usually a very red by the time children arrived at school.

While a group gathered around the organ and some others remembered the old pump organ, the instrument of the day.

Former students said how they used

... today that wish is still coming true.

Our founders visualized us as a vital part of our community that is much more than a place where money changes hands. Their wish was to encourage both business and individual growth and to employ sound banking practices that serve as a cornerstone for continued success.

Our wish, today, is the same. We continue to work toward that goal and will maintain the tradition set forth by our founders.

We want that wish to keep coming true.
