Deaths

MARK DANIEL VAUGHN

Mark Daniel Vaughn, 18, son of William D. and Retha Boone Vaughn, Route 3, Carlisle, died Friday, Sept. 7, 1984 at Central Baptist Hospital, Lexington.

He was a native of Nicholas County.

Other survivors are one brother, Jeffrey Vaughn, Carlisle; maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Boone, Carlisle; paternal grandmother, Mrs. William Vaughn Sr., Nicholas County.

Services were Monday, Sept. 10, at the Mathers-Gaunce Funeral Home by the Rev. Scott Briggs. Burial in Carlisle Cemetery.

Casketbearers were Scott Burton, Jerry Vanlandingham, Eddie Whirles, Jeff Paynter, Barry Myers and Darrin Barker.

MRS. CLAUDE LINVILLE

Mrs. Clara Cawood Linville, 86, mother of Mildred Storey, died Tuesday, Sept. 4, 1984 at the Fleming County Hospital.

She was the widow of Claude Linville, daughter of the late Emery and Jessie McCarty Cawood, a resident of Pioneer Trace Nursing Home for the last two years, a charter member and secretary of the Mt. Tabor Homemakers for many years. She was the owner of Licking Valley Farm and she and her husband were co-founders of the Lakewood Foodtown in Flemingsburg. She was a member of the First United Methodist Church, Flemingsburg.

Other survivors are a grandson, Robert L. Storey; two great-granddaughters, Carole Margaret and Lori Ann Storey, all of Lexington; two sisters, Mrs. Biddie McCord and Mrs. Alleta Hinkson, both of Paris; one brother, Bob Cawood, Carlisle.

Funeral services were Friday, Sept. 7, at the Boone-Nickell Funeral Home by the Rev. Donald Guth. Burial in Sunset Memorial Gardens.

LEORA LEER

Leora Leer, 97, died Friday, August 7, 1984 at Mary Chiles Hospital, Mt. Sterling.

She was a native of Nicholas County, member of the Sharpsburg Christian Church and daughter of the late Theopius and Elisa Hutsell Johnson.

Survivors are five cousins, Lucy, Lillie and George Jones, Lacy Thompson and Albert Hutsell, all of Paris.

Graveside services were Wednesday, August 12, in Henryville Cemetery.

A tall tomato plant

A tomato plant that measures eight feet from top to bottom was grown by 5'9" tall W.H. (Doc) Burke, 306 Dorsey Avenue. Burke purchased the seed in a Mt. Sterling grocery store. Anyone have a taller one? — Mercury photo.

Board of Ed green lights 12 measures

Twelve measures were approved by the Nicholas County Board of Education at its regular meeting Sept. 10. They were:

* To hold night classes at Nicholas County High School in typing and computers, home economics and vocational agriculture.

* To allow yearbook sponsors and five students to attend workshop in Lexington on Sept. 11.

* To allow students to attend Chandler Medical Center open house on Friday, Sept. 21.

* To allow March of Dimes to have reading program in elementary school.

* To approve non-resident contracts with Robertson County, Bath County, Harrison County, Fleming County and Bourbon County.

* To approve Working Budget as recommended by Supt. Elder for 1984-85 school year.

* To approve trips for Gainful Child Care Class for 1984-85 school year.

* To allow FHA advisers, FHA officers and delegates to attend leadership meeting on Saturday, Sept. 22 at the University of Kentucky.

August 1 at $250 per month; Mrs. Gardner began work July 1 at $500 per month.

* The county will pay expenses for two landfill employees — Jerry Watkins and Clarence Moss — to attend a required training school for certification to work at the landfill.

* Magistrates Melvin Fryman and Orville Atkinson brought up the fact that a county loader had reportedly been used in non-county business by an employee over the weekend. They asked that any and all such practices involving county equipment be terminated.

* Court met August 27 to approve the Mather's Educational Fund committee report for the 1984-85 school year. The committee, composed of administrator Imogene Green, Betty Conrad, Emerson Baker and Joseph H. Conley, granted 221 student aid requests (ranging from $120 per elementary student to $170 for high school age) and rejected 18.

PARENTS WEEKEND SEPT. 14-16 AT MSU

Morehead State University's 1984 Parents' weekend is set for Sept. 14-16.

The annual event offers parents of students the opportunity to visit the campus and meet students, faculty and staff of MSU. A dinner, breakfast, concert and golf tournament highlight the weekend activities.

* To approve elementary school seventh and eighth grades participating in Math Count, sponsored by Kentucky Society of Professional Engineers.

* To send three faculty representatives to International Reading Association Southeastern Reading Clinic, Nov. 7 and 8 in Lexington.

* To place Vickie Bussell Ison on substeacher list.

* To advertise for sealed bids property insurance. Sealed bids are to be opened at the Oct. 8 board meeting.

during the past year. The occasion was the Governor's Industry Appreciation luncheon, held at the Executive Inn West.

The Mercury has installed a MCS-6 which interfaces with other equipment to set and store type, print out accounts payable and receivable, estimate and do general ledger. Fisher calls it "my latest folly," among other things.

Wolf referred to the newspaper's composing, camera and dark room as being one of the best equipped of any paper its size in Kentucky. Over a hundred plaques and certificates denoting excellence of its editorial product line the walls of The Mercury office, making it one of the most honored papers in its circulation class, despite a limited economic base (advertising revenue).

Of some concern, Wolf pointed out, are figures unearthed by John Burke, C of C past president, showing Fayette County retail sales take in a disposable income at a rate of 115 percent, Montgomery County at 125 percent and Nicholas only 23 percent.

AS TO THE FUTURE, population over the next 26 years is projected to increase by 26 percent. Andy Dudley, who heads the Chamber's Economic Development Committee, is working closely with the Kentucky Department of Commerce and Bluegrass Area Development District and other agencies to lay groundwork instrumental to landing a small industry. A brochure profiling the county, its assets and available work force is to be published soon.

Dudley feels an industry employing 25-50 people would be compatible to existing facilities here. He noted that transportation could be a major problem but suggested that if the Mountain Parkway could be extended to northern Kentucky by way of the Blue Licks area, for example, and U.S. 68 improved, Nicholas County could experience the growth that has come to Winchester, Mt. Sterling and Powell County.

He warned this wouldn't be easy. "It takes a lot of clout to get highways."

Nathan Young, president of the Deposit Bank, told Wolf last week that he feels the local economy exists "in a good environment — not wholly dependent on any one facet."
