Fences, education and tobacco

by Senator Ed Ford
There are only six more months left in the session before the 1986 session of the legislature convenes. For all practical purposes, the session ends in October. That is the last month that legislative committee meetings are scheduled.

Several pieces of legislation have been drafted for action by the next General Assembly.

Representative Richard Turner, Jr., Tompkinsville, has his way, the state and district courts could be brought to a few private courts to maintain their portion of a line fence and a bill he has drafted.

The bill would allow a portion of a line fence to be owned by a landowner who has constructed a fence to protect his land.

Ford's Footnotes

Task Force held in the Senate chambers in Frankfort last week, United States Senator Wendell Ford addressed to and brought an up-to-date on negotiations with tobacco companies.

The negotiation delegations in Washington have been meeting with U.S. farm trade and others to reach a solution as to how to handle surplus tobacco use in the next year and in the future.

OFTEN WE FORGET that all Kentuckians will be severely affected, not just tobacco farmers if the price support and allotment program is lost.
