New Army recruiter

S.Sgt. Richard T. Mayes has been named to command the Army Recruiting Station, 722 Main Street, Paris. He is responsible for recruiting young men and women from the Nicholas County area.

Army names Mayes new recruiter

The United States Army Louisville Recruiting Battalion has named Staff Sergeant Richard T. Mayes to the position of Commander of the Army Recruiting Station, 722 Main Street, Paris. Staff Sgt. Mayes is taking over command of the recruiting station from Sgt. 1st Class Robert Jones, who left for his new assignment.

Mayes is responsible for recruiting young men and women for the United States Army in the Nicholas County area. He will be working with high school seniors and recent graduates who are interested in joining the Army.

Staff Sgt. Mayes has been a member of the United States Army Recruiting Command since January 1984 and was previously assigned to the South Lexington Army Recruiting Station from January 1984 to November 1985.

HE HAS BEEN in the Regular Army since 1978 and has served two tours of duty overseas in the Free Republic of Germany at Hanau and Gelnhausen where he served as a Military Policeman 3nd Drug Investigator for the Military Police Corps.

Mayes also served a three-year tour of duty at Fort Bragg, N.C., as the Non-Commissioned Officer in Charge of the Drug Suppression Team, before coming to the Recruiting Command.

Mayes said of his new assignment in Paris, "My family and I are very happy to be a part of the Nicholas County community and I look forward to working with the people who are interested in joining the Army."

Mayes continued, "It's my job as an Army Recruiter to keep the people informed and make them aware of the enlistment incentives, options and programs currently being offered by the Army, and to assist them in choosing a career and skills training that best matches their qualifications and interests."

He concluded, "The Army pays you while you are learning a skill and offers a cash enlistment bonus of up to $8,000 for some of those job skills. The Army also offers an excellent educational assistance incentive to young people who enlist of up to $25,200 to pay for college tuition."

Mayes is a native of Lexington and a 1975 graduate of Lafayette High School. He attended Eastern Kentucky University in 1975-76 majoring in criminal justice.

Persons interested in talking to Staff Sgt. Mayes about the Army's enlistment program may contact him in Paris or call him collect at 1-987-6812.

KHC loan applications open today

Bourbon Agricultural Deposit Bank and Trust Company is one of 67 lending institutions that will be working with Kentucky Housing Corporation (KHC) to provide a 9 3/8 percent interest rate to lower and moderate income individuals and families in the Nicholas County area.

The below-market interest rate comes as a result of a $100,000,000 bond sold by KHC.

"This is the lowest interest rate KHC has been able to offer since 1978," stated KHC executive director F. Lynn Luallen, "and it is important to note the 9 3/8 percent interest rate will remain fixed throughout the life of the loan."

To qualify for a KHC loan, a family or individual may earn up to $25,000 gross income and may purchase a house costing no more than $46,000 ($52,000 in certain Eastern Kentucky counties). Unless living in federally designated targeted areas, applicants may not have owned a home in the past three years.

According to Luallen, the application period will be 18 months. During the first 60 days, commitments will only be made on loans to those persons earning 80 percent or less of the State Median Income. Eighty percent of median is $18,000.

Lending institutions will begin taking applications Dec. 12.

Park increases ski facilities

Ski General Butler, the four-year old facility located on the grounds of General Butler State Resort Park, is sporting several new additions to its alpine arsenal this year.

The installation of six new snowmaking machines has increased snow-making capabilities by 50 percent, and with the recent purchases of rental equipment, 1,100 pairs of skis and boots stand ready to face the rigors of the December to March ski season, according to Ski Butler Business Manager Becky Hammond.

Additional enhancements to the Carrollton facility include a new triple chair lift, two new slopes for advanced skiers and 250 additional parking spaces, Hammond said. Ski Butler is operated by an Indiana company, Pauli Peaks. For information call 502-732-4331.

When in doubt teachers may call toll free number

Kentucky schoolteachers who have questions, concerns or problems involving educational policies or issues can now call a toll-free number in the Department of Education for information.

Superintendent of Public Instruction Alice McDonald said teachers would be able to call the toll-free number 24 hours a day, seven days a week. The number, which was installed last week, is 800-252-7776, or 800-CLASSRM.

The toll-free number will be answered during working hours by Kay Anne Wilborn of the department's Office of Instruction. During evening hours and on weekends and holidays, messages will be taken by an answering machine. Responses will be provided "at the earliest possible moment," said Wilborn, who formerly taught in Shelby County.

"If I know the answers to teachers' questions, I will inform them immediately while I have them on the line," she added.

Walleye stock program unde

Kentucky Afield

by Art Lander Jr.

Lake autumn is a time when many anglers turn their attention to walleye. There's a bonanza in store for those anglers hardy enough to brave the cold-walleye stacked up on rip-rap, gravel flats or points in 15 to 20 feet of water, willing and eager to attack slab spoons, crankbaits, jigs, or nightcrawler/spinner combinations.

A DNMAN said t three major im stocked with one t meeting, set to run Thursday through Saturday, Dec. 12-14. The group will hear progress reports on major farm legislation still before Congress and plan strategy for the upcoming session of the state General Assembly.

Part of the good news awaiting the delegates concerns membership of the state's largest farm organization. Kentucky Farm Bureau reported an increase of 13,000 members during 1985, the largest gain realized by any of the 48 state Farm Bureaus. Total Farm Bureau membership in Kentucky now stands at better than 244,000.

GUEST SPEAKERS for the meeting include Sen. Mitch McConnell and former CBS news correspondent David Dick. McConnell is scheduled to address the opening All-Community Luncheon while Dick, a Kentucky native and current associate journalism professor at the University of Kentucky, is on the Friday morning program.

Kentucky Farm Bureau president Ray Mackey will give his annual address during that same Friday delegate session.

Policy debate is slated for Friday and Saturday, with hundreds of resolutions on the table for consideration. Among them are proposals to endorse certain mandatory farm commodity check-offs, set up a state hay marketing association and ban government programs from teaching production techniques to farmers in other countries. Another would abolish the office of Kentucky lieutenant governor.

SIX COMMODITY conferences on the meeting's opening day offer specialized reports to the farmers in attendance. The six are feed grains/soybeans, livestock, dairy, horticulture, tobacco and forage crops.

At the tobacco conference, Burley Cove general counsel Larry Forgy will report on any late developments in the effort to guide a major tobacco program reform package through Congress. The measure has been awaiting action by a House-Senate conference committee following passage by the Senate as a part of a major tax and budget bill.

YOUNG FARMERS day is Friday as 10 finalists in the Discussion Meet and three top finishers in an Outstanding Young Farm Family contest find out who will advance to national finals in Atlanta next month.

Farm Bureau convention opens today

It's been a headline year for agriculture during 1985, but most of the news has been bad.

But as delegates to the 66th annual Kentucky Farm Bureau convention gather in Louisville this week, the emphasis should be more on the positive side.

A crowd of some 2,000 farmers and family members is expected to turn out for the Farm Bureau's annual meeting, set to run Thursday through Saturday, Dec. 12-14. The group will hear progress reports on major farm legislation still before Congress and plan strategy for the upcoming session of the state General Assembly.
