The state Corps of Engineers clearly the dam as "high hazard."

GRW suggests that the dam project begin in January 1987 with completion in July 1987.

However, the trio did suggest that there were two "pragmatic solutions" to dam construction. They were: breaching the dam, which means making a wide break in the middle or completely breaching down the dam and eliminating the reservoir; pumping gravel into the dam.

According to Oliver Vico, the state geologist, work was done in the 1980s.

Hendwood stated that few cities in Kentucky had reservoirs such as Carlisle, that most pumped water from the nearest water source.

It was pointed out by Mayor Frank Hughes, councilperson Betty Burton and city clerk Mary Tapp that it is costing the city about $2.80 per month for one meter which is pumping water from Licking River, and $1.20 per month at the water plant. Also, that the plant pumps about 11 months out of a year from the river.

Gene Kelley, water treatment plant manager, reported to the City Compliance Plan report which is a federally governed requirement.

UPON COMPLETION of GRW report (which was confined to the city) and discussion among their wives, council members were not ready to commit the city to the project before studying the proposal further.

After the meeting this summer in a.m. to 12 noon.

Kenosha, Wisconsin with state officials. Jockey International president Howard Conley and Mayor Hughes, the mayor was under the impression that the city's only commitment towards buying BEI is compliance with EPA regulations on the labor cost of buying equipment about $2,000 with the arms from BEI's plant to the city's water treatment plant.

IN OTHER BUSINESS, councilperson Betty Burton suggested that the Harpell Garage property be cleaned up.

Also, Mayor Hughes is waiting on a letter from the Dept. of Transportation concerning costs and to whom for railroad aspects of the Lawrenceville and Upper Jacktown crossings. Reportedly one congressional equal-costs about $20,000 with the arms costing about $2,000. TTY also is awaiting the DOT decision.

Council adopted Ordinance No. 33 concerning termination of employment of city employees.

Council went into closed session for about 30 minutes to discuss a personnel problem. No action was taken upon resumption of open session.
