NICHOLAS CIRCUIT COURT

85-CR-016. Commonwealth of Kentucky vs Arlon Florence, third degree burglary

--(R4)7, Commonwealth of Kentucky vs David Al Tovar A/K/A David Fryman, third degree burglary

GRAND JURY REPORT

The Grand Jury for the fall term 1985 in Nicholas Circuit Court filed the following report:

"We, the Grand Jury duly empaneled for the period beginning September 1985 of the Nicholas Circuit Court do hereby make our final report as follows:

"We have made careful investigation into all violations of the penal laws of this state in this jurisdiction to date of which we have any knowledge or have received information, and have returned indictments in all cases in which the evidence in our opinion justified trial by petit jury. We have been in session three days, have returned eight indictments, and have failed to return indictments on four charges referred to us for investigation." Signed by Roger Crouch, foreman.

Merry Christmas in many languages

Christmas greetings are universal, but the languages in which they are expressed are varied indeed.

In France, for instance, you would be greeted with "Joyeux Noel!"

If you are in Italy at Christmas time, you will be greeted with "Buon Natale."

Germans, on the other hand, will wish you "Frohliche Weihnachten."

Norwegians say, "Gledelig Jul!"

In Bohemia, the greetings are expressed with "Veselie Vanoce."

In Bulgaria, it's "Chestita Koleda," Croatians wish you "Sretan Boja."

A Welshman will greet you with "Nadolig Llawen."

Both the Portuguese and Brazilians share the same greetings: "Boas Festas."

In Poland, you would be greeted with "Wesolych Swiat."

The Irish say, "Nodlaig Mhaith Chugnat."

However differently it is expressed, the wish is always the same throughout the world: "Merry Christmas!"

Health Tips from Lee Rose

Toy safety

The most adorable and innocent looking toys could turn a Christmas gift into a source of tragedy for an infant or toddler.

This young age group instinctively puts everything in the mouth regardless of size. Soft, cuddly bears with felt and/or button eyes and nose that can be pulled off or come loose after being well loved over time, can be quickly popped into a little mouth. Choking could occur instantly, but remember that every child who gags and coughs may not be truly choking. A choking victim cannot speak, becomes blue, and may collapse. Should any of these three occur, immediate life saving steps must be taken. The obvious thing is to reach in the mouth and remove the object without pushing it further down. If this is not successful, the Heimlich Maneuver is the next step.

To perform the Heimlich Maneuver, stand or kneel behind the child and place arms around the child's waist. With the thumb side of a tight fist pressed next to the abdomen just below the rib cage and above the navel, grasp it with the other hand and press it into the abdomen with a quick upward thrust. Repeat the thrust if needed.

For an infant or child lying on its back, face the child from above and with the heel of the bottom hand in the same location as above, press with a quick inward and upward thrust.

After the object has been removed the child must be examined by a physician for possible complications.

Make all the gifts you select for infants and young children thoughtful choices with safety the first consideration. Foods such as popcorn and nuts should not be given to the child under two and one-half years of age.

For more information, contact Lee Rose at the Nicholas County Health Center, phone 289-2188.

Kentucky Afield

He's as big as I am!

by Art Lauder, Jr.

For the second year in a row, Lake Cumberland has yielded a Kentucky state record rockfish during the month of December.

Wednesday morning, Dec. 11, 27-year old Roger Foster of Somerset boated a 36-pound, four-ounce rockfish which has been accepted as the new state record for the species by the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources.

Foster's catch eclipsed Robbie Bell's 49-pound, eight-ounce Kentucky state record striper, which was caught just a year and one week ago, by a whopping eight pounds, 12 ounces. And according to the International Game Fish Association's (IGFA) 1985 World Record Game Fishes", Foster's catch should also qualify as a world line class record. The giant striper measured 56 inches in length and had a 36-inch girth.

The current IGFA 20-pound line class world record for striped bass (landlocked) is a 52 pounds, eight ounces; the fish was taken from the Colorado River in Arizona on June 27, 1974. Foster's catch, made with a casting rod and reel, exceeds this current line class world record by five pounds, 12 ounces.

Foster said he's interested in applying for the 20-pound line class world record and will be sending the paperwork off to the IGFA soon. Even though Foster made his catch on 17-pound test line, he will have to apply for the 20-pound line class world record since there isn't a 17-pound test line category on the IGFA record books.

Foster's rockfish is very close to the IGFA all-tackle world record of 59 pounds, 12 ounces. While many local anglers believe that stripers in excess of 60 pounds are present in Lake Cumberland, it's likely that Foster's fish will stay in the record books for some time to come. But don't be surprised if someday the all-tackle world record striper (landlocked) is caught from the sprawling 32,200-acre impoundment in south central Kentucky. The fishery is just that good.

Benjy Kinman, the Division of Fisheries biologist who manages the department's Predator Fish Evaluation Study, said that scales from the new state record rockfish were aged and it's believed that the fish was almost 11 years old when it was caught. "It was most likely stocked in 1975, one of more than 49,000 four to eight-inch fingerlings placed in the lake during two separate stockings that year," explained Pete Pfeiffer, director of fisheries.

While Bell's record catch was made on a jig, Foster's came on a shallow running crankbait (Cordell Redfin) twitched across the surface. The monster rockfish was feeding on shad and came to the top in about 16 feet of water off a rock bank in the Beaver Creek embayment.

Foster had been fishing with his nephew Reggie Stringer since 6:00 a.m. without a strike. "About 8 o'clock we saw bloops as big as cigarette butts on the LCR (liquid crystal recorder, an electronic depth sounder). We both began casting crankbaits but soon afterwards Reggie switched to a jigging spoon because we thought maybe the suspended fish were walleye," Foster explained.

"A little while later Foster hooked into his trophy. "I saw a big swirl on the surface and cast towards it," Foster remembered, adding that "the fish's powerful runs stripped off about 100 yards of line." It took Foster about 25 minutes to land the fish. When the rockfish first rolled on the surface he said he told Reggie "he's as big as I am."
