Verse for the Week
And the angel said unto them, Fear not, for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people.

— Luke 2:10

Annual Christmas dinner
The Carlisle Rotary Club sponsored their annual Christmas dinner and party for 24 elementary school students last Thursday at the Carlisle Depot. Children have finished dinner and await the arrival of Santa bearing gifts for all. Rotary members of Wilson, Ron Herwood, Wilmer Holcomb and Edith Hoffinger; Mrs. Marguerite Etkin, second grade teacher at NCS; and Mrs. Brandis Anderson, coordinator, accompanied the children. The meal was prepared by wives of Rotary members and other volunteers.

Santa visits

Muscles

Q. How do the eye muscles affect how one sees?

A. There are six muscles attached to the outside of each eye. These muscles constantly move the eye to determine what reaches the retina. The image formed on the retina is transmitted to the brain by the optic nerve. For accurate sight, the muscles of each eye must work as a well-coordinated team, so that the images received by the brain from each eye are coordinated.

In mild cases of poor muscle control, one eye usually compensates by exerting extra effort to force the eyes to see as a team. This extra strain may cause headaches and fatigue.

In more severe cases, the patient may experience double vision. Eventually the brain tries of seeing different images, or the same image twice, and shuts out the image received from one eye. Unless coordination of the eye muscles is improved with visual training, increased seeing difficulties will interfere with occupational, educational and recreational activities.
