Eye Openers

By Dr. Robert F. Pretzsch, Optometrist
 Neartpoint Stress - Part 1

In primitive times, the human eye's chief function was to spot animals and danger from a distance. Now, most of our work and leisure time is spent looking at things within an arm's distance. The earlier your vision tests, the more you can prevent eye strain. Visual stress is the failure of the eyes to adjust to nearpoint tasks for sustained periods of time. When this stress continues, it produces eye problems and visual discomfort. You get headaches, burning eyes, tearing, or your eyes tire easily after working at close range for a sustained period. It is likely that your visual system needs help.
