PUBLIC NOTIFICATION

The Sharpsburg Water District hereby gives notice that the maximum contaminant level for turbidity was exceeded during its recently reported period of December 1984 and January 1985, to the state's Division of Water. The test for turbidity is to be performed here in the water plant on a daily basis. It is a measure of the clarity of the water and is one method of assuring purity.

Although turbidity itself is not usually a health threat, it does show a lowering of water quality and can interfere with disinfection of the water. The Sharpsburg Water District will take the necessary corrective action at the water treatment plant.

KET extends deadline for awards

To further educational excellence in Kentucky, the Ashland Oil Foundation has again joined in partnership with Kentucky Educational Television to recognize teachers across the state for outstanding utilization of instructional television during the 1984-85 school year.

Entry forms have been sent to each school in the state and to each KET district liaison. The deadline originally was Feb. 18, but because the inclement weather has forced many school closings around the state, KET has extended the deadline to March 1, 1985. All teachers in the 'state who use instructional television in the classroom are eligible to enter.

The Ashland Oil Foundation has donated color classroom television sets and stands to be awarded to each of the six regional winners for his or her school. Kentucky crafts exhibited in New York

Governor Martha Layne Collins has announced that for the first time, Kentucky crafts will be exhibited and marketed at the American and International Craft Exhibition at the New York Gift Show, Feb. 24-28. This is the first year that the New York Show has included crafts and Kentucky will have the largest booth in the Crafts Exhibition. The New York Gift Show is the largest show of its kind in the United States and one of the largest in the world.

"This is a tremendous opportunity to open up new markets for Kentucky crafts," the governor said. "With over 30,000 buyers from all over the world in attendance, Kentucky crafts will be showcased in a booth that will incorporate the works of over 40 of Kentucky's craftspeople." The booth is being coordinated by the Kentucky Department of the Arts and will promote Kentucky as a center of the crafts industry nationally.

"Our efforts to attract new buyers and build stable, long-term markets for our crafts are an important part of our total economic development program," said the Commerce Cabinet. Kentucky crafts represent one of our most vital small business communities, and small business is critical to Kentucky's economic well-being," the governor noted. "The quality of Kentucky crafts reflects a special part of our heritage and traditions, and while we appreciate their artistic integrity, we also recognize the economic impact of a healthy crafts industry," she continued.

"This New York venture is only one of several initiatives which the Collins Administration is undertaking in support of our crafts industry," the governor noted. "Through the Department of the Arts and the Commerce Cabinet, we are striving to provide more technical assistance with workshops held around the state, and we are updating lists, through a computer system at the Department of the Arts of both buyers and potential buyers, as well as craftspeople from all across Kentucky. These efforts help us to dramatically increase our outreach programs, and our ultimate goal is to have crafts buyers think of Kentucky first. This upgraded information system greatly enhances our ability to put buyers in touch with those who can supply the particular crafts," she added.

Representatives from 10 Kentucky crafts businesses will actually be attending the New York Show, and the works of over 30 others will be marketed at the Kentucky booth. Department of the Arts staff will be on hand to coordinate the display area, provide marketing assistance, and distribute information to buyers. The Kentucky booth will be located on Pier 90 in New York City.
