And, to what avail? Johnny can't read, at least not very well. And, it follows, if Johnny can't read, he can't grasp the knowledge of the textbooks in any field.

If the policy holds, Johnny won't graduate from Irvington High as a star football player to be sought by colleges and pros for a future fortune without being able to read. — by S.C. Van Curen

Space program spending: A lot of people carp about this money, how it ought to be spent on the domestic front to better the welfare of the folks back home. Who in the hell do they think are holding those rocket ships? Martians?

Crime in the streets: Not the best place in the world to have a crime, but better than in your home where a bunch of good furniture and rugs are going to get torn up. Congress will pass a law paying all victims of crime.

Food: I don't know if you've ever seen a knife/fork used to cook your food or cut it with your teeth. You'll need a knife to cut meat and a fork to stab it.

second Sunday of every May. Jarvis' mother was born on second Sunday of May.)
 From a mark of affection and gratitude and devotion on the part of one young woman, Mother's Day is observed for the 77th year on May 12, 1963) has grown into an international event, through which eternal joys of motherhood are pressed.

Ms. Jarvis' notion was to write special letter or message to mothers.

television violence suffered mostly by one factor. Can be controlled as long as you are bigger than your kids.

Our favorite: When "Saturday Night Specials" are outlawed, crowds will do their shopping at stores offering "Friday Night Specials."

Legions of marijuana. This is very likely as soon as the Surgeon General can look it with cancer and AIDS.

For Yuletide: "The Christmas Carol" is the most popular holiday story in the hospital.

So whatever happens during the month in 86, don't let it get me. I'm taking the rest of the year off.
