Miss Robyn Brookshire

Miss Brookshire is runner-up in state Pre-Teen Pageant

After two days of intense competition against 38 other contestants, Robyn Brookshire of Carlisle finished as first runner-up at the 1985 Miss Kentucky National Pre-Teen Pageant, held August 23 and 24 at the Holiday Inn South in Louisville.

Contestants were judged in the areas of poise-personality, talent, interview and appearance, each contributing 25 percent of the total score. A highlight of the pageant was on Saturday night when each young lady, dressed in an evening gown, was escorted on stage by her father.

Miss Kentucky Pre-Teen for 1985 is Terrie Grutzard of Winchester. Kristy M. Smiley of Cloverport was second runner-up. Wendy Suma of Louisville, third and Barbara M. Dixon of Hazard, fourth.

Robyn, 11, was also selected as "Miss Hospitality." She finished as second runner-up in the talent competition, playing Aaron Copeland's "The Cat and the Mouse" on the piano. Robyn also received a trophy for program participation and another for being named as a pageant finalist.

Robyn said, "One of the nicest things about the pageant was the opportunity to meet and make a lot of new friends from around the state." She was crowned the 1981 "Little Miss" at the Ewing-Fleming County Fair.

Kay's Kitchen

By Kay Infurt

While writing the column on chocolate pies last week I was reminded of an article on chess pies I had saved from Bon Appetit several years ago. It was written by Jean Anderson, who has written several cookbooks. The chess pies given this week are from that article.

As we all know chess pies are definitely a southern treat. I always enjoy serving them when I know some of my guests are not familiar with this special treat. They always want the recipe, since they are so little known elsewhere outside the South.

There are several theories as to where the name chess pie originated: one, that chess is from chest with the t dropped, as often happens when southerners speak. These pies were kept in a chest or cabinet because they were so sugary they didn't have to be kept in the ice house like ordinary custard pies. The idea I like best is the story of the plantation cook who, when asked what she was making, replied, "Jes' pie."

LEMON CHESS PIE

1½ cups sugar
4 teaspoons cornstarch
2 teaspoons finely grated lemon rind
4 eggs, room temperature
¼ cup fresh lemon juice
5 tablespoons butter, melted and cooled
1 partially baked 9-inch pie shell

Preheat oven to 325 degrees. Combine sugar and cornstarch in large bowl and mix well. Stir in lemon peel. Beat in eggs one at a time. Stir in lemon juice; blend in butter. Pour into pie shell. Bake until puffed and golden brown, 50-60 minutes. Cool to room temperature before cutting. Filling will thicken, fall somewhat and acquire a jellylike texture as it cools.

BROWN SUGAR PIE

2 cups firmly packed light brown sugar
1½ teaspoons cornstarch
4 eggs, room temperature
2 tablespoons whipping cream
1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice
2 teaspoons vanilla
½ cup butter, melted and cooled
1 partially baked 9-inch pastry shell

Preheat oven to 325 degrees. Combine brown sugar and cornstarch in large bowl and mix, pressing out lumps. Beat in eggs one at a time. Stir in cream, lemon juice and vanilla. Blend in melted butter. Pour into pie shell. Bake until puffed and browned, 50-60 minutes. Cool before serving.

RUM, RAISIN, PECAN PIE

1½ cups sugar
1 cup raisins
¼ cup half and half
½ cup unsalted butter
6 egg yolks, beaten to blend
1¼ cups coarsely chopped pecans
2 tablespoons dark rum
1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice
½ teaspoon vanilla
1 pinch salt
1 partially baked pastry shell

Preheat oven to 425 degrees. Combine sugar, raisins, half and half and butter in heavy saucepan and bring to simmer over medium heat, stirring frequently. Remove from heat. Gradually beat hot sugar mixture into yolks in large bowl. Stir in pecans, rum, lemon juice, vanilla and salt. Pour into pie shell. Bake 15 minutes. Reduce oven temperature to 375 degrees and bake 45-50 minutes until golden. Cool before serving.

KENTUCKY CHESS PIE

2 cups sugar
2 tablespoons stone-ground white cornmeal
2 tablespoons flour
3 eggs, beaten to blend
1 cup half and half
½ cup butter, melted and cooled
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ teaspoon salt
1 partially baked pie shell

Preheat oven to 425 degrees. Mix sugar, cornmeal and flour in large bowl. Stir in eggs. Blend in half and half, butter, vanilla and salt. Pour filling into pie shell. Bake 15 minutes. Reduce oven temperature to 375 degrees and continue baking 45-50 minutes. Let pie cool before serving.

I might add that if using tart shells, most Kentucky good cooks put a bit of tart jelly in the center of each tart shell before pouring in the filling.

Livestock prices fall but retail costs don't

by Gary Huddleston

Livestock prices paid to Kentucky farmers fell much faster during the first seven months of 1985 than did retail meat costs, according to comparisons released by Kentucky Farm Bureau.

But those farm-to-retail margins may be narrowing, as August retail prices for both beef and pork are substantially lower, the Farm Bureau's marketabasket food price survey found.

A simmering controversy over meat pricing margins found its way into national headlines earlier this month, when the Department of Agriculture and farm officials accused retailers of holding beef prices at high levels even though farm-level cattle prices had plummeted.

Retailers countered that the month-to-month comparisons are misleading during periods of falling prices, since wholesale meat price changes don't show up at retail for at least 90 days.

THE KENTUCKY findings, released as part of the August marketbasket survey, confirm the national trend for both beef and pork. From January through July, cattle prices in the state dropped nearly 11 percent and hog prices fell by 3.5 percent. During that same period, the average retail price of beef came down just four percent while pork prices failed to show any decrease, staying virtually unchanged.

In August, however, beef prices came down an additional 3.1 percent, and pork started downward, falling 1.7 percent. No August figures were yet available for farm-level livestock prices, although analysts generally agreed that further declines could show up in the next report.

Nationally, figures through June showed that while farm-level and wholesale beef costs had plunged by 25 percent, retail prices had come down just three percent. That prompted JoAnn Smith, president of the National Cattlemen's Association, to ask that retailers "do more beef featuring and reduce prices to a point where a lot more consumers buy a lot more beef."

FARM BUREAU'S August marketbasket survey showed a slight drop of .2 of one percent in overall food prices, compared to July figures. Lower beef and pork prices were partially offset by higher tabs on poultry and dairy products.

The 40-item marketbasket cost $59.47 in August, compared to $59.60 in July. The August 1984 survey average was $61.96, four percent higher than the current figure. But the nationwide index of all farm prices showed a much steeper drop — 13 percent — during the same 11-month period.

Tompkinsville registered the lowest local marketbasket average during August while Grayson checked in at the high mark. Overall, volunteers working through Kentucky Farm Bureau Women canvassed retail food prices in 13 Kentucky communities.

Those local averages are Tompkinsville, 54.84; Drakesboro, 54.81; London, 56.33; Scottsville, 56.53; Hopkinsville, 56.58; Salyersville, 56.66; Glasgow, 57.81; Kevil, 59.39; Georgetown, 59.58; Greensburg, 59.59; Henderson, 59.73; Morehead, 59.99 Lexington, 59.99; Elizabethtown, 60.00; Somerset, 60.90; Dry Ridge, 60.99; Greenup, 61.08; Louisville, 61.61; Owensboro, 61.72; Jackson, 62.06; Danville, 62.72; Louisa, 63.78 and Grayson, 64.73.

Future Homemakers have potluck dinner

Officers of the Nicholas County chapter of the Future Homemakers of America met August 20 at president Carla Hall's house for a potluck dinner and the first executive council meeting for the 1985-86 school year.

First vice president Janelle Hall explained the calendar of events and time's program of work. The theme this year is "Hot Topics Teen Concerns," which covers areas such as teenage suicide, drinking and driving, teenage pregnancy, anorexia nervosa and rape prevention.

Carla Hall and Pam Kirby, second vice president, who also serve as regional FHA officers, talked about some experiences they had while attending State FHA Leadership Camp in Hardinsburg.

Secretary Anna Linville and historian Cynthia Fisher told about the FHA student body families and futures conference held August 17 in Lexington.

Chapter advisors attending were Miss Kathy Green, Mrs. Martha Taylor and Mrs. Bonnie Metcalfe.

Other officers attending were Lesley Duncan, treasurer; Shelly Hamilton, assistant treasurer; Tamila Anderson, assistant historian; Dana Vice, reporter; Becky Smith, song leader; Tracy Manley, recreation leader; Tracy Hollar, devotion leader; Kim Fryman, entertainment chairman; Angie Hurst, honor roll chairman; Rhonda Prather and Dana Caskey, scholarship chairmen. Another FHA member attending was Anita Smith.

September 8-14 is proclaimed 'learning week'

Gov. Martha Layne Collins, at the request of Kentucky PTA, has proclaimed the week of Sept. 8-14 as "KET Is For Learning Week."

The week has been set aside to increase public awareness of KET's daytime instructional programs.

"KET Is For Learning Week" will assist the educational network in implementing one of its ongoing missions, to make the public more aware of the station's use as an educational resource for kindergarten through 12th grade.

"Back to School," a KET-produced special which highlights samples of instructional programs, will be aired Thursday, Sept. 12 at 9:30 p.m.

During the 1984-85 school year, 94 percent of Kentucky's schools, representing all public school districts and 85 percent of public school students, made use of KET programs and services.

"KET Is For Learning Week" also is designed to encourage viewers to take the time to see what is being offered to Kentucky teachers and students during the daytime hours.

Heart disease discussed on KET

At the age of 49, Jim Lehrer became a statistic. He became that one American in four to suffer a heart attack.

The growing health concerns of heart attack and heart disease will be the focus of "My Heart, Your Heart," emoring Tuesday, Sept 10 at 9 p.m. on KET.

At special council meeting

Bob Smallwood, left, and Brad Montgomery, representatives of GRW Engineers of Lexington, were present at a called meeting of City Council Thursday night. At right is councilman Cartmell Lester, who invited Ford to Carlisle.
