Our week well titled

We like the theme of National Newspaper Week this year: "Freedom of the Press is Everybody's Business." The title was selected to remind the general public that freedom of the press benefits everyone.

The First Amendment, perhaps more so than any other rights our Constitution gives us, is the cornerstone of the many freedoms we as a people enjoy today. Its language, which guarantees us freedom of speech and the press, among other freedoms, is simple and unequivocal. The right to know, to inform and to be informed is basic to our way of life.

It is a right, not of the press, however, but of the people. The function of the press in general, and the Carlisle Mercury in particular, is to serve the people's right to know. Restrict the press and the people's rights and freedoms are restricted.

However small, we are the voice of our community. No other publication or broadcast media is as concerned with the day to day happenings, the recording of births, deaths, engagements, weddings, news of the courts, council, health, schools and industries affecting the economy of our city and county. We advocate the business community the weekly opportunity to advertise their products, and the consumers the opportunity to compare prices for the best buys right here at home.

The world would not come to an end if we missed a publication date, but the void would be felt on any given Thursday when readers have been accustomed to receiving their hometown news for most of their lives.

The Mercury has been around since 1867, in continuous publication for 118 years. Few newspapers have been in existence longer. With your continued support we plan to be around for generations to come, guaranteeing your right to know to the best of our ability. —EAW.

A missive from China

From Theodore L. (Ted) Inks, Jr. in Hong Kong, in the following missive, written September 4.

"My copy of the Mercury arrives here in Hong Kong some six to eight weeks after the date of publication, but before and I still enjoy reading most our favorite news items. The Mercury's recent issue received dated 7/28.

"A couple of issues brought back some good memories of my former days in Carlisle. The article about an old man living on Highway 29, brought back memories of my former days in Carlisle. The article about an old man living on Highway 29, brought back memories of my former days in Carlisle. Dear Mr. Inks, I am very interested in the reaction and feelings of the Mercury and Charles Higgins as a result of my article in the August issue.

"By now you are probably wondering why a former Carlisle boy in Hong Kong. We moved here in 1970 to work as a manager of the position of Procurement Manager in the International Procurement Office of IBM. This is a two to three year assignment and my family members are enjoying the new experience.

"Business, and my family members are enjoying the new experience. Business, and my family members are enjoying the new experience. Business, and my family members are enjoying the new experience.

Letters...

No such word, as 'sweeping' in MSU changes

To The Carlisle Mercury: I am currently a student at Morehead State University and upon returning to Carlisle I was surprised to find Mr. Kelley's letter in opposition to President Henderson's (Mercury, Sept. 12 issue) I understand his feelings of being an authority over someone who does not attend Morehead, but I think he disregarded several very important points.

I agree that the student must be willing in order to get an education, however, this is part of the reason that many of the "Protesters" students did not protest. We are at Morehead to receive an education and therefore must place that at the top of our educational priorities.

Personally, I found many students who felt that they could not succeed unless they were attending their education. Others were afraid of the interference of police or a possible "Red State" report. There are many students who are afraid of the police or a possible "Red State" report.

Appreciates news

To The Carlisle Mercury: On behalf of the Nicholas County Extension Magazine, I would like to thank you for the picture you published of the Blue Grass Cultural Arts Camp. Also, for its publicity and news items during the past year. We appreciate it very much.

Sincerely,
Elizabeth Klingman
Cultural Arts Director

College kids don't leave home

...they take it all with them

Everyone talks about college kids leaving home. They don't actually leave home — they take their homes with them. They take their homes with them. They take their homes with them.

Quite often, you'll see parents go to college with their children. They take their homes with them. They take their homes with them. They take their homes with them.

There are parents who take their homes with them. They take their homes with them. They take their homes with them. They take their homes with them.

Burned-out family aided by community

The community came to the aid of a burned out family whose rental trailer and contents were completely destroyed by fire in the early morning hours September 13 at the family's trailer park on the Concrete Road.

Members of the Department of Human Resources in Carlisle, and the Nicholas County Fire Dept. were called to the scene. Fire Chief Mark Hinkle, Fire Capt. Paul G. Jones and Fireman Paul G. Jones were on duty. The trailer was destroyed by fire in the early morning hours September 13 at the family's trailer park on the Concrete Road.

Roger time-saver

A safe timer, a cutting machine mechanic of Blue Grass Kountry, is shown receiving a Certificate of Appreciation from Edna Hill, director of Kountry, and Ron Howard, Kenton County Supervisor. Roger developed an improved method of connecting yarns to the knitting machine. Not only did his suggestion save time, it is safer as well.
