Alcohol related arrests reported

Kentucky State Police have reported four alcohol related arrests.

Trooper Kenneth Jones has charged Edna Ruth Wagoner, 51, of Carlisle with driving under the influence and operating a vehicle on a suspended operator's license. The arrest occurred at 2:36 p.m. July 28, seven miles east of Carlisle on U.S. 68.

Also arrested was Charles Bailey, 62, of Cynthiana, charged with alcohol intoxication. Both were released to a transportation officer and lodged in Mason County jail.

Trooper Tim Thomas has charged Irvin Hawkins, 33, of Carlisle, with driving under the influence. He was arrested at 12:30 a.m. Aug. 3 in the western limits of Carlisle on Highway 36. He was turned over to the Nicholas County jailer.

Trooper Thomas also charged Clayton Morris, 44, of Carlisle with alcohol intoxication. The arrest occurred at 3 about 10 p.m. on Main Street. He was also placed in the custody of the local jailer.

REP. ADRIAN ARNOLD

SLC elects Rep. Arnold to committee

A local legislator will serve as vice chairman of a Southern Legislative Conference (SLC) committee during 1986-87.

State Rep. Adrian Arnold, D-Mt. Sterling, recently was elected vice chairman of the SLC Agriculture and Rural Development Committee at SLC's 40th annual meeting in Fort Worth, Texas.

SLC committee members are selected from legislative leaders from state agriculture committees and chairmen of house and senate agriculture committees in the 15 southern states comprising the conference.

Arnold has represented Kentucky on the SLC committee for several years and was named to the group's steering committee in early 1985. He has played a key role in bringing tobacco-state issues before the regional body and has appeared with the Agriculture and Rural Development Council for briefings on Capitol Hill.

The committee sponsored a two-day agriculture policy forum to develop new strategies for diversifying the economy of the rural south during the conference in Fort Worth. The forum was co-sponsored by the Center for Agriculture and Rural Development of the Council of State Governments in Lexington.

Arnold is a member of the House of Representatives Counties and Special Districts and Energy standing committee. He also serves on the Kentucky Tobacco and Small Business Task Forces, the Animal Diagnostic Lab Subcommittee and the Program Review and Investigation Statutory Committee.

Heidi will attend the Day Care Center when it opens next month.

The Fants were both raised in California. Bonny's family is from Oakland in the San Francisco Bay area, while Rev. Fant spent his childhood in and around Los Angeles County of southern California.

They are enjoying life in a small community so far. "The people are so friendly. It's just great having all the room of a house (the church parsonage) after living in small campus apartments most of our lives," Bonny said this week.

HER HUSBAND enjoys the outdoors, especially fishing, and camping whenever time permits. He also writes book reviews for the Journal of American Scientific Affiliation, being a student of science and theology.

The Fants expect to be in Carlisle at least two years, possibly longer. He has been accepted at Princeton University where he would work on his doctorate.

Persons attending the Sunday afternoon service are reminded to bring lawn chairs or blankets.

In case of inclement weather the service will be moved indoors.

Farm Bureau Day Aug. 21 at state fair

Thursday, August 21 will be Farm Bureau Day at the Kentucky State Fair, beginning at 7:30 a.m. with an open-to-the-public ham breakfast expected to attract over 1,800 people. In its 32nd year, the ham breakfast specializes in Kentucky products and will serve a hardy country meal in Freedom Hall.

Country ham will be accompanied by red-eye gravy, grits, tomatoes, eggs, juice and coffee. To create such a feast, 4800 eggs will be scrambled and over 1300 pounds of ham will be fried.

Ray Mackey, president of Farm Bureau, will preside. The guest list will include Gov. Martha Layne Collins, Lt. Gov. Steve Beshear, and both Kentucky's senators.

The highlight of the breakfast will be the auction of the Grand Champion Ham. The ham is auctioned and the price bid is for each pound in the total weight of the ham. Last year's winning bid was $2500 per pound, or $40,625.

Tickets are $5.50 each.

How fishermen beat the heat

by Norm Minch

For the past several weeks, dry, hot conditions have been keeping many anglers off the waters and large numbers of fish off fishing lines throughout the state.

Although recent rainfall has provided some relief, many parts of Kentucky are still well below normal for this time of year.

But even though conditions are not optimal, die-hard anglers can still harvest a catch during this period, if they follow some general guidelines.

As most anglers are aware, during excessively hot periods of the year many game fish opt for deeper, cooler waters and are more active in early morning, late afternoon and night.

Some of our deeper lakes start to stratify and develop a layer of water approximately 15-20 feet deep where oxygen levels and temperatures are more comfortable then the warm surface water.

FINDING THIS layer and keeping lures at this depth may prove beneficial in locating fish during this time of year.

Water clarity should be taken into consideration when fishing during daylight hours. Particularly in clear water, anglers will find more fish located near some type of cover such as fallen trees, stumps and ledges where light is less able to reach the fish.

Slower working baits may produce better simply because of the lessened activity of the fish, and logically the longer a lure is in front of a fish the better the chance it will be hit.

Tempting them with smaller baits, especially in clearer water conditions, may produce more strikes since the lurking lunker may not be able to distinguish a lure as artificial so easily.

NIGHT FISHING may offer the best environment for the angler, even though maybe not the most convenient. Many fish, in ultra-low light conditions, can spot a lure at night in a clear lake, and with less fear of the angler, may be more prone to strike.

Many species of fish are feeding more at night as well and are not hesitating so closely to their shaded parking place as during daylight hours.

Knowing the layout of the waters you fish is also important. Finding channels, dropoffs, ledges and subsurface cover areas and working these areas will produce fish during the mid-summer season.

Investigate these areas yourself.

Guard marks another milestone

The Kentucky National Guard is marking another milestone of service to the state and country this year according to Adjutant General Billy G. Wellman, "things have never looked better!"

The Guard's long and proud history encompasses service from the early settlement of the state through the War of 1812, The Mexican, Civil, Korean, Vietnam, and World Wars I and II.

Service to fellow Kentuckians, which is the Guard's primary mission, was performed on large scales during the floods of 1937, tornadoes in 1974 and demonstrations during the early seventies.

Last week, local Guardsmen loaded trains with hay to ship to farmers in drought-ravaged southern states.

ALTHOUGH ALWAYS available in times of crisis, there is another side of the Guard that many people do not realize exists.

The Guard is instrumental in developing one of Kentucky's most important natural resources: it's youth. Last year it paid more than $2 million in benefits for advanced education.

At a recent meeting of state recruiters Wellman noted the various programs the Guard offers young Kentuckians interested in college as a valuable tool in attracting new recruits, such as the New GI bill, State Tuition Assistance, The Student Loan Repayment Program, Enlistment Bonus and improved pay.

A person who enlists for six years can receive more than $30,000 in pay and educational benefits.

For those not interested in a college education, the technical training in computers, electronics, engineering, communications, supply and the medical field can help secure an attractive job in the civilian market.
