Adequate stock water a concern

Dry conditions continue to cause problems for Kentucky farmers. Some areas of Kentucky received significant rainfall last week, but most sections of the state need additional rain. Heaviest rainfall was in western Kentucky where Mayfield received 3.91 and Paducah received 3.02 inches.

Stock water is becoming a concern in some areas. As of Friday, Aug. 8, soil moisture was reported 52 percent very short.

As of Sunday, Aug. 10, 56 percent of the state's burley crop had been topped compared to 74 percent last year and 44 percent on average. Some burley has been cut but much of the crop housed to date was firing badly and was cut to limit losses.

Dry weather has limited growth in some areas with late set tobacco hurt the most. Overall tobacco condition was rated 63 percent fair. Dry weather is causing most of the problems with this year's crop, but Black Shank, aphids and grasshoppers continue to cause damage.

The state's corn crop continues to develop ahead of both last year and normal. Some early corn is beginning to tassel and ears in the early fields were reported harvested in Logan County. Harvest is expected to begin in most areas by late August or early September. Sixty-one percent of the acreage is now in dough stage or beyond compared to 56 percent last year and 49 percent on average.

Hay and pasture acreage continue to suffer under dry conditions. Some livestock producers are feeding hay and some expressed concern over winterhay supplies, if fall cutting are inadequate. Hay crop condition was rated 11 percent very poor, 47 percent poor, 35 percent fair.

Electric use hits summer high in July

Many Kentuckians may be noticing the effects of last month's record heat and humidity when they open their electric bills. Cooling needs were 9 percent greater than normal, according to unofficial weather data for the Lexington area, and 18 of the 31 days of the month had high temperatures of 90 degrees or above. The month of July also saw record electricity use by customers of Kentucky Utilities Company. A new summer peak of 2,406,000 kilowatts (kw) was set at 3 p.m. on July 18, according to preliminary figures. The previous summer peak was 2,399,000 kw on Aug. 21, 1985.

The KU system's all-time peak remains at 2,432,000 kw, recorded on Jan. 21, 1985.

July 18 was a Friday," noted KU President W.B. Bechanan, "and that typically isn't a peak-use day. But that was during one of the hottest periods of the month, and air conditioners were hard at work."

Bechanan said that KU's system has the capacity to handle major problems other than damage from summer electrical storms. "Customers should, however, continue using electricity wisely," he added, "because of the effect increased usage has on their electric bills."

Agatha Christie mysteries encore

The "Agatha Christie Mysteries" are not of the British crime queen's usual genre of corpse-strewn plots. According to producer Pat Sandys, "The Christie style is unmistakable — a delicious sense of humor, intricate plots with twists and turns — but for a change, the theme is love in all its aspects." The five programs encore on Saturdays at 9 p.m. on KET, as part of the "Mystery!" series.

"Jane in Search of a Job" opens the series on Aug. 16. The heroine, Jane Cleveland, complains she is unfit for practical employment because, as the daughter of the country vicar, she was not "brought up to do anything" that might earn her a living. Desperately seeking any kind of job, she answers a puzzling ad in the "Agony" column of the London Times, which plunges her into a bizarre association with a mysterious grand duchess, a priceless string of pearls and the police.

On August 23, Christie introduces the second in "Mystery of the Blue Jar." A young man who lives in a cottage adjoining a golf course hears a girl's cry for help precisely at 7:25 each morning. Much to his disconcertment, no one else hears the plea.

"In a Glass Darkly," airing August 30, is another chilling tale about
