IN MEMORY OF SEVEN OF US

On the wings of gulls and the albatrus your spirits ride
They flank the rocky shoreline and blanket the rising tide.
You chanced to give and gave your most prized possession; and for this the moons of distant skies are named for you.
For us you left your home to pioneer a way into the strange and the unknown,
And for this we will think of you each time we view the heavens or gaze into the warm glow of a new and crackling fire.
