

Optometrists into second phase of state 'Vision' project thru week of January 27

Making shelves from bleachers

Harold Howard, industrial arts student at Nicholas County High School, is shown assembling a set of book shelves under the direction of Industrial Arts instructor Jim Simpson. Harold was making the shelves for use in the principal's office from repairs on the gym bleachers.

Deaths

MRS. WALTER THOMNSBURG
Mrs. Bonnie Lou Thornsbury, 46, wife of Walter Thornsbury, 214 Case Run Road, died Saturday, January 22, 1986 at St. Joseph Hospital after a short illness.

She was a member and Sunday School teacher at Locust Grove Baptist Church, a native of Nicholas County, a sewing machine operator and member of the Thornsbury Club at Blue Grass Industries.

Other survivors are one son, Allen Thomas Thornsbury, Nicholas County; her parents, Leavel and Laine Mae Livingood, Nicholas County; three brothers, Henry, Roy and Marlon Livingood, all of Nicholas County; three sisters, Martha Mitchell, Sue Caswell and Libby Clark, all of Nicholas County; several nieces and nephews.

Services were Tuesday, Jan. 21 at Mathews-Gaunce Funeral Home by the Rev. H.G. Pratt and the Rev. Harry Hargan. Burial in Carlisle

During the week of January 27, optometrists throughout the state of Kentucky will be participating in the second phase of the Kentucky "Vision" Project. Dr. Robert F. Pretzsch from his office in Cynthiana will be one of those participating.

When asked about the project, Dr. Pretzsch replied that he felt that this was a very worthwhile project.

"During the first phase of the project, we had patients that were seeking help for reasons ranging from having their glasses torn up during a house fire to having a serious vision problem due to not being able to afford to have an eye examination for many years," Dr. Pretzsch also stated that optometrists throughout the state were very concerned that when money is tight, vision care is one of the first things to suffer. "That's why so many optometrists in the state are participating in the project."

The Kentucky "Vision" Project, Dr. Pretzsch explained, is designed to help the working poor of Kentucky to get the help they need for their eyes. The working poor are those people who have an income and are paying for their food and housing bills, but just don't have anything left over for vision care. They are not on any government program that might cover these costs and they don't have private health insurance that would cover them. The Kentucky "Vision" Project provides free, full-range eye care for those who qualify, Dr. Pretzsch stated.

Since the project's beginning in July of 1980, over 5000 Kentuckians have called 1-800-625-2725 to apply for the project. "This response shows that there is definitely a need for our services," Dr. Pretzsch stated.

He also said that if you know of anyone who might benefit from the project, have them call the 800 telephone number. "We may be able to help. Remember, we only have one pair of eyes in our lifetime and we need to take the best care of them possible."

College students should apply for aid now

The month of January is a critical time for students to start applying for summer and fall financial aid, according to the director of the largest private scholarship search firm in the country.

Numerous private grants and scholarships, sponsored by corporations, trade and civic groups and private foundations are available this year, according to the director. It has been estimated that one-fourth of all financial aid comes from the private sector and in a number of cases it is not based on parents' financial data as much as student activities and interests. A major qualification is a student's selected major with a number of new scholarships available in computer programming, business, law, health and communications.

The Scholarship Bank provides each student with 65 sources of directly relevant financial aid from a data base of over 25,000 scholarships. The search includes not only major, but geographic desires, age, religion, type of aid sought (internships, grants, scholarships) and parents' employer, union or military background.

Top students may apply for scholarship

Gov. Martha Rayne Collins has announced invitations are being sent to top Kentucky high school students to apply for the Kentucky Distinguished Scholarship Program.

Administered by the Kentucky Higher Education Assistance Authority, the program recognizes and rewards academic excellence among the state's most talented students with encouraging them to attend Kentucky colleges and universities. Invitations will be sent to high school students scoring in the top percentile of either the SAT or ACT college entrance examinations.

"The Kentucky Distinguished Scholarship Award Program is certainly in keeping with this administration's emphasis on improving educational opportunities for all Kentuckians," Gov. Collins said. "I commend the Board of Directors of the Higher Education Assistance Authority for establishing this scholarship program."

One hundred Kentucky Distinguished Scholars will be named and will receive one-time Recognition Awards of $500 to be applied to the cost of attending the eligible Kentucky college or university. Monetary awards will be made to students who can demonstrate additional financial needs.

Recipients will be selected by a committee composed of the following distinguished Kentuckians: Dr. William F. Eakins, consultant, University of Louisville; chairman, Dr. A.D. Ahlgrig, former president of Western Kentucky University; George Atkins, vice president of Public Affairs, Humana Corporation; Charlotte E. Baldwin, secretary of Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Cabinet; Thomas L. Henley, president and chief executive officer, Dyrhiser, Inc.; Louisa Keyman, former mayor, Glasgow, Ky. and Lois Weinberg, self-employed parent-educator.

Student applications can receive free a publication on "How to Play Grantsmanship" without obligation. Interested students should send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Scholarship Bank, 4025 N. Grand, Covington, CA 97174.
