Let's hear it for the senator

U.S. Senator Wendell Ford steps to the microphone to address the crowd on hand for the 37th annual Blackberry Festival Thursday, July 3. Others welcoming the senior senator from Ken-

New rules for deposit of trash

Nicholas County has set new rules for the deposit of trash in its dumpsters, and will impose stiff fines on violators who abuse the privilege.

Effective immediately, all refuse, trash or other waste deposited in any trash collector dumpster utilized in the county trash collection program must be securely bagged in leakproof plastic bags or other suitable containers.

At its July 2 meeting, fiscal court gave the second reading to Ordinance No. 603 which states that nothing is to be deposited in dumpsters that is not bagged or that would harm the county's pickup equipment.

Dumpsters, the ordinance points out, are not to be used for the deposit of dead animals, appliances, tree limbs, brush, lumber or other large items such as discarded furniture and bedding, for example.

INDUSTRY EXCLUSIVE: Heese Smoak pointed out that the landfill on Highway 36 is open Monday through Friday and from 9-11 a.m. on Saturday for the deposit of larger items that cannot be bagged or which are in violation of the ordinance relating to dumpsters.

Persons or organizations violating the ordinance face fines ranging from $50 to $200. Persons are also reminded that it is illegal to set fire to trash deposited in dumpsters.

(Other business included approval of budget transfers and payment of bills.)

Queen for a year

U.S. Senator Wendell Ford crowns Angie Burkner 1986 Blackberry Festival Queen following the July 3 parade. Angie, daughter of Mrs. Paula Burkner, succeeds Jimatha Carter, last year's queen.

Kelley, Hopkins repeat winners of Blackberry 5K

Gayle Kelley, with a time of 17 minutes and 27 seconds, was first across the finish line in the Second Annual Blackberry 5K run which held July 4 in downtown Carlisle.

A total of 98 entered the competition, plus 14 others who participated in the Kids Fun Run.

Kelley, a dental starter because of a back injury suffered while training for the Houston Marathon this spring, repeated his win of a year ago when he covered the 3.1 mile course out East Main Street to Moorefield Road and back in 17:29. Barbara Hopkins finished first in the women's division with a time of 20:29, half a minute better than her winning time of 21:05 in the 1985 inaugural event.

Following Kelley across the finish line were Dale Brown and Fred Barrow. Hopkins was fourth overall and first among women. Both Kelley and Hopkins, representing the sponsoring Carlisle/Nicholas County Chamber of Commerce and the Carlisle Community Women's Club, were high in praise of the volunteer support which made the event possible, as they put it:

Sentenced to Read

Alternative available for young offenders

This 16-year-old, we'll call him Billy, hated school. "I'd get in trouble for things in class and for not doing my work."

Billy didn't feel comfortable in the classroom and wanted to quit school. Why? Because he couldn't read at the level of most of his classmates.

So dropping out and finding other more comfortable diversions seemed the thing to do. But finding work isn't easy when you can't read, so, in reality, crime becomes a way to get by. That often means criminal offense after criminal offense with little hope for a better life.

IN THE PAST, district judges have had few effective ways to deal with the problem. A new program that is sweeping Kentucky gives judges a unique, structured disposition for juveniles and young adult offenders, ages 14-21, who have dropped out of school or refuse to go.

Instead of being prohibited, institutionalized or sent back to school they are "sentenced to Read." And many times, through working with a reading paraprofessional a certain number of hours each week, many juveniles gain the confidence and skills needed to function in the school environment and dropouts are able to achieve their GEDs and be placed in community jobs.

Making them want to learn and become a productive member of society is the key of Sentenced to Read. And in a one-on-one environment with a caring paraprofessional, free of peer pressure waiting to learn becomes much easier.

THE PROGRAM is now in place in Nicholas County as a result of cooperative effort between the judicial system, Nicholas County Schools and the Cabinet of Human Resources.

Keying on economically disadvantaged young people who are classified as status, misdemeanor and felony offenders, Sentenced to Read is currently funded in 23 Kentucky counties by private industry councils through funds from the Job Training Partnership Act.

The Bluegrass Private Industry Council, for example, is providing funding for Bourbon, Clark, Harrison, Nicholas and Montgomery counties. Private industry councils serve as distribution centers for money aimed at low income people.

MIKEY FLEMING is the paraprofessional in charge of the local Sentenced to Read program. She was hired by the Nicholas County school board as an instructor-coordinator of the school-court consortium against truancy.
