Sports in Kentucky

At week good week and other things... It was another bad time for sports last week, wasn't it? ... Don Rogers died... Miami University right end Willie Smith was charged with possession of cocaine...

David Braxton was stripped of his living title after cocaine was found in his system following a fight... It was a long range standpoint, last week might be looked back on as one newspaper and one academic adviser at the University of Maryland...

The Washington Post was first to report that Kennedy Whitehouse... academic adviser at the University of Maryland's basketball team had resigned because of Coach Charles 'Lefty' Driessel...

The coach's reaction was predictable: "I don't know what he's talking about... I've never had any contact with him... I don't know what he's talking about... I've never had any contact with him..."

But Driessel played not because he was in love with his job... Maryland coach John Braxton said he wants to put coaches under academic supervision... That's what Driessel's way of doing things is, but it's a move that is bound to cause at least a minor jerk reaction on the right side of some other NCAA officials...

But what is troubling here is that the academic problems of Maryland didn't begin with Braxton's death... He was a coach and his staff last month when Driessel's players flunked out of school... Five months ago when the team had a 20-2 record...

I have an idea — all was quiet... NCAA investigators were told... Maryland officials were meeting... There always were a certain number of people who were willing to compromise the rules... The coped, by someone who's caught is always that everybody...
