Booth, Hensley named committee chairmen

U.S. Senator Wendell Ford announced the formation of a Nicholas County re-election committee to be headed by Kimball Booth and Tom Hensley. Booth, who is employed by IBM in Lexington, and Hensley, a Pleasant Valley retired territory sales manager and farmer, said they welcomed the opportunity to work with the campaign in Ford's bid for a third term in the U.S. Senate.

"We need to keep Wendell Ford in Washington as our Senator," said Booth. His seniority is a valuable asset for the people of the Commonwealth. He has the knowledge, the skill and the expertise to get things done for us. That's why it's in our best interest that Wendell Ford be re-elected."

Security is an often overlooked aspect of government in terms of committee assignments. When the next session of Congress begins, Ford will be no less than 70 in seniority. And if Democrats regain control of the Senate, Ford is in line to become chairman of the Rules Committee.

Ford has been listed among the "most effective Senators in America," a respected political pundit commented on Ford's efforts in a recent issue of "The New York Times." "He does not get everything he goes after, but he has a knack of coming away with something."

As a member of the Energy and Natural Resources Committee and the Commerce, Science and Transportation Committee, Ford deals with many issues that affect Kentucky, said Hensley. "As a former State Senator, I know the people feel about those issues and can speak out in their interest."

Workers for government may get coverage
State and local government workers who have never been covered under Social Security or whose coverage has been terminated may want to explore the possibility of getting coverage.

If a State or local government worker is not covered by Social Security, the employer should contact the State Social Security representative available to speak with any group considering applying for coverage. For more information, contact the Louisville Social Security office, 664-406.
