Pair attend leadership conference
Two Carlisle residents, Sonya Johnson, representing Nicholas County High School and Monica Hamon, representing Bourbon County High School, were in Lexington last weekend attending the Kentucky Youth Leadership Conference. They joined 230 other high school sophomores for a weekend of seminars involving leaders from business, government, education and the arts, and more.

The weekend program is held annually at Transylvania University. Former governor Julian Carroll, Kentucky State University President Raymond Burns, Lexington developer Dudley Webb, United States Congressman Larry Hopkins and state government officials Alice McDonald and David Boswell were among the speakers.

The Kentucky Youth Leadership Seminar is part of the Hugh O'Brien Youth Foundation which sponsors similar seminars in all 50 states and numerous foreign countries.
