

Walker, Thompson get best of draft $$$

...the NBA draft and things because of the volume and number of talent last week's National Basketball Association college draft was the most entertaining in years. Lots of surprises, intriguing picks.

If NBA commissioner David Stern had gone out to buy a few lottery tickets during the off season to new heights, this would have been the time to surprise. Make no mistake, the first round by Portland? The Trail Blazers need a few million dollars to buy a few lottery tickets to surprise.

At 12 Avondale Sabonis is a choice player. But since Trail Blazers management has an eye on Mikhail Gorbachev, Sam Hinson would not seem to have much to worry about.

PERFECT. Kentucky's Kenny Walker and Louisville's Bill Thompson had to be delighted for it is finally the way the draft fell into place as well for both.

Walker, drafted second and fourth, Boston and Indiana, passed on 76 William Bell and 111 Ray Terpay and 78 Brad Smith and chose forwards Lew and Chuck Person, leaving the Knicks, who already have a full roster available.

Perfect. Walker goes from one of America's most visible college basketball markets to one of the most where the big money is and where he will play for the longest time.

Walker, one of the most demanding drafters in the game, had a few more things to say for participants before about going there. Joe B. Hall will handle it well. Walker, the power forward, team player, will fit in nicely with Ewing, Bernard King, Trent Tucker, Earlroll Walker and others.

If the draft worked out for Walker, it was even better for Thompson. Despite forecasts that he would go high in round one, Thompson was still waiting after forwards Lew, Bill, Chuck Person, Walker, 121-Jake Williams, Walker, Bertie, Harold Bradley and Mark Allen had been taken. It was Atlanta's choice at No. 19.

Not much bargaining power, right? Not much opportunity for big draft picks either, right?

Right, but wrong. The Hawks dealt Thompson to the Los Angeles Lakers who in a summer upgrade took by the Shaquille O'Neal, Brad Daugherty, LaVarious and drafted Moses Malone to Washington.

Mr. Basketball and University of Kentucky's second best player, Thompson, was not the only one to be drafted. He was joined by a number of other players, including a few who were not drafted.

the most popular players in Kentucky history. I hope the young man is a leader and a good role model for the college and I found it amusing that both athletes after swimming five or six laps in the new three-pool lane in Indianapolis. "I was wide open," Watkins said. "Three open lanes is a kind of silly."

Quotable: When notified that he had been selected, Thompson—coming from an NCAA championship state title of the year for Kentucky's last top of the world.

The lingering question about Thompson is how he will do in the NBA. He has been a star in college and has a lot of experience. He is a good player and a good leader.

Thompson is a good player and a good leader. He is a good player and a good leader. He is a good player and a good leader.

told a writer from the AP. "He told me whatever I decided to do in life to do the best I could. Whenever I needed something, I could always ask him."
