Beef, bacon top drop in February costs

Notable drops in the cost of popular meat items offset smaller increases in prices for some fresh produce and dairy products, bringing slight overall reduction in Kentucky's retail food prices during February.

Kentucky Farm Bureau's marketbasket survey for the month showed a decline of .3 of one percent compared to the January average. Average cost of the 40-item marketbasket fell to $57.83, down from $58.09 in January. Currently prices are four percent lower than they were a year ago.

Of the six food categories in the marketbasket, beef prices dropped an average of 2.8 percent and pork tabs slid five percent. Also lower were the fruits/vegetables category and grain-based foods such as bread and flour. They both registered a two percent decline.

On the opposite end of the ledger, only dairy products posted an increase during February, rising by a modest one percent. A sixth category, poultry/eggs, was unchanged.

CONSUMERS looking for bargains in the February survey had several choices available. Ingredients for one popular summertime sandwich, the BLT, were unseasonably cheaper during the month.

Bacon averaged just $1.43 a pound, down 27 cents from January, and lettuce was 16 cents cheaper per head. Tomatoes posted a dramatic 25-cents-per-pound price decline, dropping from $1.14 to 79 cents.

Other foods which cost less for consumers during February included ground beef, down 10 cents to $1.17 per pound; rib eye steaks, off 22 cents a pound to $4.43; whole fryers, dropping 13 cents to 62 cents; corn meal, 10 cents lower for a five-pound bag; potato chips, six cents less at $1.13.

SHOWING HIGHER unit costs were chicken breasts, up 27 cents a pound, priced at $1.88; American and cheddar cheese, seven and nine cents higher respectively; fresh cucumbers, up 15 cents to 35 cents a pound; green peppers, eight cents more, selling at 42 cents.

Looking ahead, analysts say little change in the cost of basic food items can be expected from farm price movement in the near future, with the exception of meat. Grain prices are still wallowing under the weight of crushing international surpluses, but most experts are bullish on livestock prices into the spring and summer.

The traditional decline in consumption during Lent should turn around fairly quickly, the analysts say, and smaller herd numbers could cause a price rally for farmers and slightly higher prices at retail.

THE FEBRUARY marketbasket survey tracked food prices in 18 Kentucky communities. Morehead was lowest among the local survey reports and Louisa posted the highest figure. The price canvassing is conducted by volunteers working through Kentucky Farm Bureau Women.

The local averages were Morehead, 52.01; Salyersville, 54.82; Lexington, 55.03; Scottsville, 55.13; Greensburg, 56.49; Greenup, 56.86; Glasgow, 57.07; Greenville, 57.13; Henderson, 57.92.

Hopkinsville, 58.36; Georgetown 58.51; London, 58.67; Grayson, 58.85; Elizabethtown, 59.44; Somerset, 60.25; Louisville, 61.37; Owensboro, 63.12; Louisa, 63.34.

Some farm taxes were due March 3

Certain farmers are required to file their 1985 federal income tax returns and pay any tax due by March 3, according to the Internal Revenue Service.

Persons who earned at least two-thirds of their 1985 gross income from farming and did not pay estimated tax by Jan. 15, 1986 (or who paid by that date but underestimated their tax liability), must file their returns and pay all tax due by March 3 to avoid paying a penalty. If estimated tax has been paid, the return is due by April 15, 1986.
