Report any SS change

People who receive checks on behalf of another are required to inform Social Security of any changes that might affect their continued eligibility to monthly checks, Tom Cortner, Social Security manager in Maysville said recently.

As payee, you are responsible for promptly reporting certain events such as:

• a disabled person's condition improves or he or she starts working (no matter how small the earnings are);

• custody of child changes;

• beneficiary moves or enters or leaves an institution;

• beneficiary starts receiving another benefit or has a change in the amount;

• person receiving SSI checks has a change in income or resources;

• beneficiary plans to go outside the United States for 30 days or more; or

• you are no longer responsible for the beneficiary.

You should have received a booklet that tells about a beneficiary's rights and responsibilities and explains more about what you need to report. Contact any Social Security office for a free copy if you do not have one. There is a special booklet for each type of benefit. Reporting may be made by calling the Maysville office, 564-4096.

'Song of Survival' sounds Sept. 10

As the Japanese swept across Southeast Asia in the early stages of World War II, thousands of resident Europeans were taken prisoner in sordid jungle camps. The perserverence of one such group of captives - thanks to their music - is told in "Song of Survival," airing Sept. 10, at 8 p.m. on KET.

This group, some 30 Dutch, British and Australian women, was captured on and around the island of Sumatra in early 1942. Separated from their husbands and male compatriots for four years, these women and their children were held in a succession of prison camps where poor nutrition, wretched sanitation, disease and death were daily facts of life.

One diversion that helped them cope with the torment of captivity was their modest camp choral group.

4-H, FFA steer show in Lexington

More than 400 steers have been nominated by 4-H and FFA members for five district steer shows to be held throughout Kentucky during September.

The Bluegrass District Steer Show will be held Thursday, Sept. 18, at Bluegrass Stockyards No. 2 in Lexington. Mike Dotson is chairman of the show.

Weights for this event is between 8 a.m. and 11 a.m. The show begins at noon. A pre-sale cookout will be held for show participants at 5 p.m., with the sale beginning at 7 p.m.

"We're certainly pleased with the participation in this year's steer shows," said Agriculture Commissioner David E. Boswell. "The young people who exhibit in these shows have the opportunity to learn more about the type of beef animal today's market is demanding. Both the on-foot and the carcass judgings are a learning experience for 4-H and FFA members even if they are not exhibiting in the shows.

"An after-show sale at four of the events allow the 4-H and FFA members to earn extra money and provide quality beef for district residents," the Commissioner added.

He also received high honors for participation in American quarter horse shows. He was the recipient of the coveted "Register of Merit," which distinguishes a high accomplishment in registered quarter horse events against top competition.

Rodney was the only exhibitor from Nicholas County and just missed having high point contest horse this year.

Regional writing workshops set at state parks

Kentucky's scenic state parks will be the inspirational setting for a series of workshops designed to help middle and high school teachers enhance their skills in teaching writing.

Middle or high school language arts teachers must apply by Sept. 15 for admission to one of the regional writing workshops. The training is required under legislation approved by the 1986 General Assembly.

"Learning to write well involves all of the logical thinking skills we endeavor to teach children," Superintendent of Public Instruction Alice McDonald said.

In the past, the quality of writing instruction simply reflected an individual teacher's interest and enthusiasm. The Office of Instruction has gathered our teachers who excel at teaching writing to share their skills through these workshops."

The high school and one middle school teacher from each district will be selected. Fifteen three-day workshops will be held Nov. 3 through 8 or Nov. 19 through 22. Participants will return for a follow-up session on March 23 and 24.

The Kentucky Department of Education will pay all expenses and reimburse school districts for the cost of substitutes

Fellowship meal, missionary speaker

Steve and Linda Whitmer, missionaries to Zimbabwe, Africa, will be special speakers at the Little Rock Christian Church, Sunday evening. They are associated with Central Africa Mission and will be returning to their second tour of duty in the central African republic.

This is the second visit for the Whitmers to Little Rock. They originally shared with the congregation as recruits planning their first African tour.

The monthly fellowship meal begins at 6:30 p.m. All interested individuals are invited and should bring a covered dish and eating utensils. The evening worship and sharing service will be presented by the Whitmers. They have two children and are originally from the Central Kentucky area.

Carl Anderson is a mother of four and wife of Ben Henderson, the director of LOGEN MISSION USA, in Lexington. Hers was a perspective based upon the application of the scripture- "I can do all things through Christ which strengthens me." This devotional became especially meaningful when the clothing, luggage, tools and camping supplies were not delivered by the airlines for two days. Team members wore the same clothing for 3 days and were dependent upon a gracious Christian family for shelter.

Limited water supply, primitive camping and little refrigeration were lessons concerning the abundance of luxury items so often taken for granted. She was impressed by the sincerity of the "nationals" of this independent, former British colony. The visit to American Christians was encouraging. Although limited in resources, they wanted to give and share.

A church building was completed, revival conducted and Vacation Bible School taught. Hopefully a work, team will be going to Grenada next year.

Many of the Little Rock group camped out, while several attended the picnic and devotional services.

Little Rock Christian camp-out

Seventy members and friends of the Little Rock Christian Church participated in a Labor Day Weekend Campout. The Paris/Bourbon County YMCA camp Little Alcorn on Stone Road was the site.

Special guest speakers were Carol Henderson and Mardi Comnton. They, along with minister, Chuck Perry of Little Rock, were part of a 15 member mission "work tour" to the Caribbean Island of Antigua March, a 15 year-old sophomore at Madison Central High School shared concerning daily experiences of the trip. This included sawing, painting, and building of a church building at Golden Grove, Antigua. The food, transportation and other items were of special interest to her.

Team members wore the same clothing for 3 days and were dependent upon a gracious Christian family for shelter.

Limited water supply, primitive camping and little refrigeration were lessons concerning the abundance of luxury items so often taken for granted. She was impressed by the sincerity of the "nationals" of this independent, former British colony. The visit to American Christians was encouraging. Although limited in resources, they wanted to give and share.

A church building was completed, revival conducted and Vacation Bible School taught. Hopefully a work, team will be going to Grenada next year.

Many of the Little Rock group camped out, while several attended the picnic and devotional services.
