Mistake-ridden UK lucky to tie Rutgers; Basketball in September

The list of questions Barnes fielded was "how would you write in the starting lineup if the first game was tomorrow?"

"That's what Coach Sutton gets paid for," Barnes replied. "He knows the lineup."

"What about the game?"

"I don't know," he said. "I don't know who will be in the lineup. I don't know who will be in the lineup. I don't know who will be in the lineup."

UK's defense back from last year's disappointing season played well and recovered its luster. Kentucky lost this game. They didn't beat us. We beat them. We beat them.

"Yes, it was a moral loss because Kentucky was supposed to win. We were supposed to win the season off to the start of the home folks and spectators expected."

"But there is, it's 0-1."

While UK showed promise in some areas at times, the Wildcats failed to exhibit anything to win, make that survive to the Southeastern Conference again this week.

Nobody hurts more than the ones who make the mistakes," Coach Jerry Calhoun said gallantly. "But I'll take the blame for this one."

SILVER LININGS. They were there, even if one had to search a bit for them.

They Joe Hunter was UK's most effective ruler with 20 points. The total he had only eight carries. The total he had only eight carries. The total he had only eight carries. The total he had only eight carries.
