Boswell protests proposals

Kentucky's Commissioner of Agriculture David Boswell has presented proposals that would both the advertising of cigarettes and other tobacco products from newspapers and magazines and other means still available to manufacturers.

In a letter mailed today to members of the Kentucky Congressional delegation and to other key members of Congress, Boswell asks that they oppose such legislation in Kentucky to control the economy of this Commonwealth, with tobacco as its mainstay.

"The tobacco production, warehousing, manufacturing and retailing account for one of every 13 jobs held by Kentuckians," the Boswell letter continues. "Tobacco is grown by 150,000 Kentucky farmers and is the key to the economic strength of our agricultural economy."

Boswell said he believes it would be hypocritical for government to make continued quotas, support price and marketing decisions on one hand, and cut off tobacco's few remaining promotional outlets on the other.

"I am afraid that I detect in such ill advised and unfair proposals ugly petty jealousies engendered by other states' economic interests," he said.

"To restrict tobacco advertising would affect Kentucky farmers in the same way that bans on the promotion of fish, shrimp, beef, grains, and wines would impact producers in Maine, Massachusetts, Kansas, Oklahoma and California," Boswell's message to Congress went on.

And he quoted an individual close to the issue as saying last month that "our Constitution does not permit a government ban on truthful speech about a lawful product" and that "ownership is not a crime and habit forming."

Boswell concluded that "Kentucky farmers and our Commonwealth's economy do not need this added blow."
