Social Security Update

WHAT ME WORRY?

"There was a time that I had really negative feelings about the soundness of the age-old Social Security System. But, because of my concern, I talked with the people at our local Social Security office and they really opened my eyes about the program.

They told me in some really "high-minded" words, just how sound the system really is. They, the lady at the office told me that they had recently released an Annual Report that showed that the OASDI programs will experience about three decades of actual surpluses of monies in the trust funds that Social Security uses to set aside the monies they pay benefits from each month.

They told me that after they put out $202 billion dollars in 1986, there will still be a balance in the trust funds of more than $42 billion.

According th them, using the "best guess" concept, the program won't have to face any more financial problems for at least 75 years and since I am 75 now (just 27 more years) I'm sure that I will be able to receive a return on my investment in the program".
