Good winter cover crop makes better summer crops, research says.

Kentucky farmers who use winter cover crops can expect greater yields in their summer corn -- especially if they choose the proper cover crop.

Wilbur Frye, a research agronomist with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, has been studying various annual legume varieties throughout the south to see which is the most productive. The results are in, and he will report on them at the national meeting of the American Society of Agronomy next week in Atlanta.

"Our experiments showed that two annual legumes outperformed all the rest in the south," he said. "Hairy vetch proved more effective in northern areas, including Kentucky, while crimson clovers (not red clover which is a perennial variety) was the best in the more southern regions such as Georgia and

By "best" he meant more dry matter was produced which produced more mulch on the surface which served to help conserve limited water supplies in the hot, summer months.

The greater dry matter also resulted in greater atmospheric nitrogen being added to the soil, a characteristic of legumes in general but especially notable in the case of hairy vetch and crimson clover.

"Even though it is true that these cover crops add significant nitrogen to the soil, I really can't justify them just for that reason," Frye said. "It would be cheaper to buy the nitrogen and fertilize the field than go to the expense of growing the cover crop."

But he added, "Yet our experiments showed that it is cost effective to grow a cover crop."

How?

"What makes it economically justifiable is that the cover crop results in a greater increase in grain yield than would occur if the cover crop weren't there," he said. "Our experiments show that just adding nitrogen does not get the increase in yield that you get if there is a cover crop."

Why?

"Because of water conservation," Frye said. "We have shown clearly that we get moisture conservation during the summer months when there is a mulch cover to the corn. Less water runoff results when the rare rains do occur, and there is less evaporation from soil moisture."

By using hairy vetch, he said, a Kentucky farmer can decrease the use of fertilizer nitrogen by about one-third and still obtain optimum grain yields.

"Clearly, higher grain yields where a legume cover crop is used can be attributed to water efficiency as well as the nitrogen provided by the legume," Frye said.

ABSOLUTE AUCTION
Saturday, Dec. 12, 1987
1:00 p.m.

Approximately 128 acre farm located off KY 1298 (Hick Hardy Road) 6 miles from Millersburg, KY, 10 miles from Carlisle, KY and 2.5 miles from Headquarters in Nicholas County.

Lula M. Davis ceased her farming operations several years ago and has rented this farm to others. She now has decided to sell this farm at absolute auction.

This 128 acres more or less farm is mostly in good grass with some woodland. There is ample water and a good tobacco base. The farm is improved with a tobacco barn and shed. It is easily accessable being only a short distance off KY 1298 Hwy.

This will be an unique opportunity to purchase a good, well located farm at your own price. If you are in the market for a good investment or a money making farm, check this one out.

DESCRIPTION OF 16.5 FOOT PASSWAY: BEGINNING at a point on the north side of said highway; reference by a concrete monument lying South 12 degrees 45 min. east 1.36.25 feet; thence with the north side of passway north 74 degrees 00 min. east 92.5 feet to a point in the center of Cassidy Creek Road; thence with the center of said road south 12 degrees 45 min. east 16.5 feet to a point on the south side of said passway south 74 degrees 00 min. west 92.5 feet to a point in the original line; thence north 12 degrees 45 min. west 16.5 feet to the place of beginning.

This being the same property conveyed to Billy Wood Allison and Brenda H. Allison, husband and wife, by Charles Watkins and Connie C. Watkins, husband and wife, by deed dated January 10, 1978, of record in Deed Book 71, Page 350, Nicholas County Clerks Office.

Upon sale of the above described property, the purchase price shall be payable as follows: Ten (10) per cent in cash or certified funds at the time of sale, with balance on a credit of thirty days for which the purchaser shall be required to execute bond, with good security, dated as of the date of the sale and bearing interest at the rate of twelve (12%) per cent per annum until paid, same to have the force and effect of a Judgment upon which execution may issue if same is not paid at maturity. As security for the purchase price the Special Commissioner will retain a lien against the real estate to secure payment of the balance of the purchase money. The purchaser shall have the privilege of paying all or any part of the purchase price or paying said bond before maturity by paying the balance of the principal, together with all accrued interest thereon.

The Purchaser shall be required to assume and pay all ad valorum taxes presently due and owing, and hereafter accruing, on the subject property.

The above described property is sold for the purpose of making the aggregate sum of $13,069.29, plus costs and attorneys fees to be determined by the court at a later date.

Following the sale of the above described property, the Special Commissioner shall report his actions to the court. Said report shall be held over for a period of ten days for confirmation or exception, and anyone desiring to object or except to the sale shall do so by that time or be barred forever.

Nicholas stuns

Day began second half scoring canning a jumper in the lane with 6:43 to play in the third quarter to give Nicholas it's biggest lead at 18, 41-23.

The lead would grow even larger.

With 2:45 remaining in the third eight minutes, Bryant muscled home a layup to give the Jackets a 21 point advantage, their biggest of the game.

Bourbon's Derek Hamilton connected on a three point play with 1:23 left in the third quarter to cut the lead to 13, but Day canned a shot from the free throw line for two, and Danny Walls muscled home three straight tips before the ball would fall, but Nicholas County's lead was 18, 54-36, at the third stop.

In the final stanza, with Jackets' fans filling the NCHS gym with noise, Nicholas County continued its pattern offense.

Although the Colonels got as close as 14 at the final buzzer, the Jackets held a 21 point lead with 3:03 to play after Bryant sent home another layup, reversing in the line.

"Nicholas County played a fine game, and did a good job tonight," Day said after the game.

"They executed well the entire night."

They made his way to the Nicholas County locker room following the game to congratulate the Nicholas County team, and Cruse.

For Cruse, the season opening win was a Giant step in right direction.

"We have to realize it was only a step . . . but a good step for this team in winning the opener," Cruse said just minutes after the game in the Nicholas County locker room.

Cruse said it took last season to get things in place.

"Anytime a new coach comes into a program it takes a while for the players . . . and the coach to

NCHS junior falls to Bourb

CARLISLE - Nicholas County Junior Varsity boys saw their season begin with a loss, Tuesday night, falling to visiting Bourbon County, 71-28.

Bourbon County's junior Colonels jumped out to an 18-1 lead at the end of the first quarter, and held a commanding 39-15 lead at intermission.

Bourbon County continued to lead, 55-20, at the third stop and extended its lead to 71-28 at the final buzzer.

Nicholas County committed 37 turnovers in the game, to just 12 for Bourbon County.

"Bourbon County has one of the best junior varsity teams it has had in several seasons," Greg Letcher, NCHS coach, said after the game.

They were able to get out to
