Around the world, and home again

Memories... pressed between the pages of my record.

In the month of Isabelle Knight, memories are vivid and numerous.
From traveling around the world, sharing these experiences in the classroom, to a simple afternoon in the partner of her home, this has been her life.

From a life of independence, Miss Knight chose a path which returned her to her home and family.
She later returned to Dayton, after nursing attempts by the high school there to convince her to return to the faculty.

One of the advantages she enjoyed most about the teaching profession was having her summers off, freeing her to travel.

My father wanted me to go to college. I would be glad to go to college. I would be glad to go to no Golden Gate Bridge in between." Although education and travel were important to her, she always made home and family tie a priority.

Miss Knight's family moved from Shelburne in Carlisle in 1957.
She lived in Carlisle for 30 years.

holding a copy of the book, Miss Knight remembered, "My parents would tell me to stand up straight when I was little, I used to say 'Like Henry VIII' to my father." Her teaching career took her to positions in eleven states, the first in West Virginia.

She returned to teach high school English in Shelburne and Dayton in Kentucky. After a fourth position, in Pennsylvania, Miss Knight returned to Carlisle to teach at Nicholas County High School.

took a train trip with some friends that covered much of the west coast and the Canadian Rockies.
I realized then just how much I really loved to travel.

What I like best in travelling by road, that's why I always take road travels, rather than going by air.

These weren't short cruises, either; the recollections "They all took at least 13 days in each direction."

On one of my trips to the west coast, I stopped off for 14 days in Vancouver to visit a friend, then rejoined the cruise to return.

I'll never forget when I called my mother to tell her about it. "I'll tell you that my brother had called about the same week with the news that he, too, had flown for the first time."

Her second trip to Europe, in 1954, was a prompt to her brother upon his graduation from University of Kentucky.

It was a much shorter trip than the first.

my first one, when I stayed two months; the remembered World War II was breaking in Europe and Hitler was going down.

Other summer vacations found her on cruises to the Baltic and Carribean Seas.

forrest, I would still be, too." During the summer of 1954, Miss Knight was restricted, she thought because she was pregnant.
A student nurse who had been with her never opened a car, to which she quickly replied, "I could tell I'd love to have a car and travel, too."

It was 1954, while in her second period of teaching in Dayton, Kentucky, when she learned of her father's failing health.

She was adamant about not waiting for parents to be nursing homebound, but she was to return home and care for them.

If I did not come back next year, UK will not be my home. I will be back in 1955, when I will be back

Questions: Can Ziegler really help Western? Chapman feeling blitzed?

Facing what Coach Murray

SAT Saturday night in Dixie Arena.

Maybe it was getting back on the horse after playing for five of his last six games on the road, but Armed's team showed up with "its game faces on" after losing at Eastern Kentucky last week.

In fact, the "topper" blisters came out of the box, but "collected them" into a 3-0 tie just five weeks ago.

Western used the kind of weapo-nary that it will have to use in the NCA A Tournament eight weeks from now.

"Defense. With only a few breakdowns, Western's defense held UK to 34.3 percent from the field.

What most of us are not told is that the UK team is not a team. It is a collection of players who are not a team.

It is not my fault, I suppose, but some of us in my profession may be off with the fullest pressure on Chapman. But the kid has just as much of us thought he would be equipped with the imagination of Jerry West.

James McNary and Roland Shelton contributed 27 points and eight assists to the offense and had three steals.

So, with a pair of tough road games on tap this week at VCU and Jacksonville, Western got its Sun Belt Conference schedule off to a solid start with an impressive show against EAB.

the Indiana Hoosiers. Having lost it last week, the Hoosiers are back in

At least from this distance, the Hoosiers seem to be presented as a very plausible view of Bob Knight.

One example that I find intriguing about Knight is demonstrated in the following episode:
After a miracle comeback win over Purdue in 1985 Knight went to his alter ego, press conference talked about going fishing that day.
According to Fineston he had repeatedly mentioned. This suddenly he said, "I'd like to answer your question, but I have to go plan another fishing trip tomorrow, and waited out."

Exactly why Knight pulled this routine only Knight could say for certain. He enjoyed it, gruffly.
Fineston says, "I'm not sure why Knight said to friends in the hallway, 'You can't talk. You can't talk.' When you see, you see, you see. Don't tell them I said you could talk. Just tell them 'No, well, then I said you couldn't talk.'
'Why?'
'You're a little victory for me.'
Knight said, 'Why not?'
