Mat Cats open season

For the past few seasons, Kentucky gymnastics head coach Leah Little has stated that each of her teams would be the best she has ever had.

Each time, she has given an accurate prediction as her Wildcat squads have vaulted up the national rankings year after year.

1987 will be no different. Little is again claiming that she has assembled the best team ever at Kentucky. With virtually all of her squad returning that finished last season ranked 21st in the nation, Little began looking forward to this season at the conclusion of last year's competition.

Now, however, Little eagerly awaits the coming season with even greater expectation as she signed three outstanding recruits that will join the current top notch troops to do battle against the nation's best.

"We have everybody back from last year's team," Little said. "We have three super new freshmen that will contribute right away."

Little's three shining new stars are Susan Seaman (a 5-time USGF Texas State Champion) from Dallas, Tex., Atlanta's Janet Decker (the highest ranked graduating senior in Georgia last year), and Heather Kirk from Reading, Penn., (a 3-time USGF regional qualifier). Kirk is as good in the classroom as she is in the gym as she graduated valedictorian of her senior class last year.

"All three freshmen are all-around performers," Little said. "We have to have a better team."

Little will be entering her 12th season as head coach and has trouble recalling a better crop of recruits.

"This is probably one of the best freshman classes we've had," Little said. "Being all-around gymnasts, they will provide great depth for our team. It should be an outstanding year for us."

Little was timely in beefing up her forces as her squad will face seven Top 20 schools in this year's 11-meet schedule.

The battle will be particularly fierce in the rugged Southeastern Conference as league foes Alabama, Florida, Georgia and LSU, which each appear on this year's slate, are all top 10 teams.

To help guide her ranks through this cheduled stiff national and SEC competition, Little has aquired the services of Bob Beach.

Beach, who will serve as assistant coach, leaves a very successful South Connecticut State program to join the UK staff. He spent three years at SCSU where last year's squad finished 16-4 and first in their region.

Beach coached four Division II All-Americans from his squad last year. In 1984, he served as a coach in association with the USA's Olympic Trials.

While Coach Little has established Kentucky as a team to be dealt with, Beach is himself excited about the possibilities the future holds for this up-and-coming squad.

"Kentucky is a good program and these are good kids," Beach said. "The fine squad already assembled and the recruits should compliment each other nicely. Excluding injury, this group should do well."

Topping the list of this year's returning gymnasts is Kendall Lucas. The junior from Florence, Ky., was voted last year's "Most Valuable Gymnast."

Lucas established the Kentucky uneven bars all-time individual record last season with a 9.50 performance against Rhode Island. Lucas also holds the Kentucky individual marks in floor exercise (9.55 against Bowling Green in 1985) and all-around (37.40 against Maryland and LSU in 1985).

In addition to Lucas, another junior, Robin Leggett of Garland, Tx., returns this season. Leggett set the Kentucky vaulting record last season with a 9.55 score against Rhode Island.

"Our biggest improvement will be in bars this season," Little said. "We went after bars people when we recruited last season. In close meets, it was our bar scores that hurt us."

Adding further support on bars will be sophomore transfer Theresa Schneider.

At Jacksonville State last season, Schneider was a Division II All-American. Theresa also holds the Jacksonville State floor record (9.55).

The 1987 University of Kentucky Gymnasts will face what has to be one of the toughest schedule in the country this season.

Bigged on the final National Association of Collegiate Gymnastic Coaches poll from 1986, Kentucky is scheduled to meet six of the nation's top 11 squads in 1987.

However, Kentucky will face the top 11 teams no less than 10 times as the Wildcats will see action against three of the top 11 twice.

The reason for this is that the aforementioned three are Southeastern Conference foes that Kentucky is scheduled to meet as part of it's regular season slate and will later have to face in the Southeastern Conference Championships. As other SEC squad, Alabama, is also ranked among the nation's top 10.

Kentucky has not scheduled the Crimson Tide for the 1987 season but will of course face them in SECs in late March.

Even if head coach Leah Little had wanted to schedule lightly this season, she could not have avoided it as SEC teams Georgia, Alabama, Florida and Louisiana State were all ranked in the top 11 in that final CACGC poll.

"The SEC is the strongest conference in the country," Little says. "If we face SEC teams alone, we'll still have one of the toughest schedules in the nation." continued Little.

The final score of 75-65 really doesn't tell the whole story of Nicholas County's loss to West Carter in the opening round of the Bath County Invitational tournament.

The Jackets led after the first eight minutes, 21-17, after playing some heads up offense.

"West Carter came out and opened up in a 2-3 zone, and we were able to hit shots from the outside," said Lee Cruse, NCHS Head Coach.

"In fact we were able to build a 10 point lead midway through the first quarter."

In the second quarter Nicholas County continued to hold its lead, but West Carter began to chip away.

"We didn't hit as well in the second quarter, but we continued to play well against the 3-3 zone.

"Gannon Bryant picked up three quick fouls, and we were in trouble that way, in the first quarter," Cruse continued, "We were able to keep the lead in that second quarter, so I kept Bryant on the bench, andthat's probably why he only had four points for the night."

The first half, Kelly Brookshire had a hot hand.

"I felt Kelly played a strong first half," Cruse said. "He had 11 points in the half. We moved him from forward to point guard, and although he is still learning the position, I like the idea of having a 6-4 guard, who can see the whole floor on offense."

The third quarter began the downfall of the Jackets. Nicholas County connected on only four shots from the floor and fell behind at the third stop, 41-36.

In the last eight minutes, West Carter dominated the game with a trapping 1-3-1 zone defense, but it wasn't something Cruse didn't expect.

"Every time I have seen them play, they have run that same defense at the beginning of the fourth quarter," Cruse said. "We looked, and there it was again. We knew it would happen, and we practiced against that defense the day before the game, but it was the first time we have seen that defense for any length of time.

"I don't feel like we could have prepared any more for the game than we did. In the fourth quarter we just let things happen we can't afford to have happen. We just didn't execute.

"We did foul more in the fourth quarter trying to get the ball back, but West Carter hit 14 of 14 from the line and that made a big difference."

Bifocals
When Benjamin Franklin invented the bifocal in the 18th century, he simply cut his two pairs of glasses in half and instructed his optician to put the distance correction in the upper portion of the frame and the near-vision half in the lower portion. And a whole new way of seeing began.
Today, bifocals are only one kind of lens within the multifocal family, lenses that correct more than one type of vision defect. Trifocals, as the name implies, have three segments, each responsible for correcting a different visual distance: far, intermediate and near.
Blended and progressive-addition lenses were developed in response to objections to the line separating corrective segments. They are ground so that the corrective prescription changes gradually from the top of the lens to the bottom. They allow the wearer to see clearly at all distances, just by adjusting his or her eyes to the proper place in the lens. Yet, to the outside world, they look like conventional single vision lenses.
Although bifocals were originally used mostly by older people, today, they are even prescribed for children who have special seeing problems.

Todd Day finished the game with 19 points, while Brookshire had a total of 18.

Danny Wells, a 6-6 sophomore, was inserted in the starting lineup for Nicholas County. Cruse said Wells will continue to participate on the junior varsity team to gain experience, but he will get as much playing time as possible.

"Wells had three blocked shots in the game, and several rebounds. He'll be able to come around more, the more playing time he is able to get."

The Jackets were scheduled to play on the road at Bath County, Tuesday night and will entertain Richmond Model, Friday night.
