

SEABOARD

OF KENTUCKY

CONTRACT PRODUCERS ARE SEABOARD'S GREATEST ASSET.

Sidney Parham, contract producer for Seaboard in Chattanooga, Tennessee:

"We built our first home in '81 and four years later, we built our second house. It is a very good business for us. It suits my wife and myself.

It started out as extra income, on down the road towards retirement but it has become our sole income. I really enjoy the poultry business. It has been well worth our time and investment. I would suggest anybody that likes the farm life, to go into the poultry business."

Parham raises, on the average, around 18,000 birds.

If you own a farm in the central Kentucky area, are willing to invest $160,000 and gross $50,000 annually, contact Seaboard Farms at 606-744-7967 or contact your local county agent for further information.

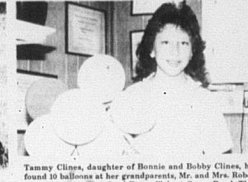

Contract farms are responsible for financing the poultry house, manpower and utilities.

Is this really mid-June? Morning temperatures last week hit in the 60's, causing these Bible Schoolers at First Christian Church to bundle-up during outside classes. -Herald Staff Photo.

Tammy Clines, daughter of Bonnie and Bobby Clines, has found 10 balloons at her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Carson, on the Clay Seed Farm, Walnut Grove Road. They were mailed from Lakeside Elementary School, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Mrs. Edith Taylor, above right, is the lady responsible for taking 30 squares made by members of Nicholas County Health Care Auxiliary and putting together the quilt shown with Mrs. Taylor and Judy Judge, a member of the quilt committee. The quilt will be auctioned at the annual Hospital Benefit Buffet Dinner scheduled to be held June 19 at the 19th Hole of Carnation. -Herald Staff Photo.
