Farm Credit Services employees offer a hand

When 431 members arrive at Camp Carlisle this summer, they'll see a new and improved version of the volunteer program. Farm Credit Services employees are donating materials and labor to help rebuild the sewer area and working on a nearby trail.

The sewer area is a spot where campers gather in the evenings for prayers, singing and storytelling. It is situated on a hill overlooking the camp lake, 1 1/2 miles from the main camp.

Food prices show rise in Kentucky
Food prices in Kentucky took a sharp turn upward during May, jumping 2.4 per cent, mostly on the strength of higher meat and grain prices.

Volunteers worked 90 degrees heat to dig up the old line. The crew pulled material from the hole over 300 feet for a better job. The resulting trench looked like a human entrencher created the landscape.

Branch Manager Pat Boyd said he was glad to have employees involved in enhancing their summer camping experience. Farm Credit Services is a member-owned cooperative that makes loans and extends financial services to farmers.
