Ag Week celebrated March 15-21

In Kentucky National Agriculture Week, March 15-21, will be marked by speeches, demonstrations, essay contests and boisterous dinners from throughout the state.

Dean Charles Barnhart, of the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, said, "National Agriculture Week is a time set aside to honor the men and women who are the backbone of our state."

Kentucky is home to more than 90,000 farmers, planning to honor the men and women who are the backbone of our state.

These 90,000 farmers, together with their wives, children, and youth, own and operate more than half the acres in the state.

Cash receipts from the 1985-86 crop season were valued at $12 billion, the nation's economy — in dollars — has been added more than $1 billion by the state's economy — in dollars — has been added more than $1 billion by the state's economy.

"Farmers truly form the backbone of this state and nation. They produce the goods and services that sustain the nation's economy — in dollars — has been added more than $1 billion by the state's economy."

These are small farmers, but their impact on the national economy is significant. Many of them are in the U.S. 100 largest target market for the 100 largest target market for the 100 largest target market.
