Debbie France

Owner glad of jewelry decision

By Heather Mathas

 A new business, and new jewelry store is vying for the Carlisle public's attention and has far been getting full speed.
 The Jewelry Patch located next to the oldarmacy and Tropical Tan tanning salon opened October 28.
 An owner and operator, Debbie France said, "We had always planned on starting a business. It was our, my Dad's and mine, plan for it to be either a jewelry store or a Marie Norman. He finally decided on a jewelry store. Right now we carry costume jewelry, gold chains and diamonds. After a while we will have watches including Swatch and other prominent brand names," France said.
 She explained, "We also provide a variety of services that many jewelry stores do not offer. Some are, mirror replacement, bracelet and other cleaning, piece re-stringing and cleaning, and jewelry repairs. These are not done at the store but taken by me to Lexington and are done for a minimal price."
 "We will also custom make jewelry. You bring in a stone or you may pick out a loose stone we will pick your setting, for a ring, out several pictures and combine them, or I can draw out what they want. This makes them unique and personal," France concluded.

Diana Jackson : Doing what she wants to do

"I always knew what I wanted to do," said Diana Jackson. Jackson owns and operates Diana's Silver Scissors, on School Avenue in Carlisle. Born and raised in Carlisle, Jackson says she will probably always stay.
 A graduate of Knottman Beauty School in 1970, Jackson established her business here 11 years ago. "When I was little, our neighbors would come over to our house, and I would wash their hair. I use to stand on a chair to roll or cut it," Jackson said.
 "There have changes since I went to school. The cost was around $375, now it costs close to $400," added Jackson.
 "The fee is very competitive business, more and more people are attending beauty school," Jackson continued.
