Eye Openers

By Dr. Robert F. Pretzsch, Optometrist

A SUBSTITUTE FOR GLASSES

The low-power magnifying glasses sold as "readers" in many variety stores can do your eyes and vision quality a disservice. While in some cases, they may make it possible to read small print, they in no way correct the individual defects which have resulted in the reading difficulty. Only a complete examination by an eye care professional can:

- determine the exact eyeglass strength or correction your eyes need.
- take into account any degree of nearsightedness or astigmatism that also needs correction.
- evaluate the general health of your eyes and evaluate any symptoms of eye disease.
- avoid the possibility of wearing the wrong eyeglasses. Wearing an incorrect prescription can cause headaches, eyestrain and poor job performance.

Your eyes deserve professional care.

Social Security Update

Household worker's wages must be reported

People who hire others to work around the house on a regular basis should be sure to report their earnings for Social Security purposes. Failure to do so may result in penalties sometime in the future, officials reminded.

A household worker is anyone who is paid to work around the home, such as a maid, cook, cleaning person, gardener, handyman, or babysitter.

A household worker's wages count for Social Security purposes only if an employer pays the worker $50 or more in cash within a calendar quarter.

Employers are required to deduct Social Security taxes from wages paid to the employee and pay the employer's matching share of the Social Security tax. Within a month after the quarter ends, employers must send the taxes and a report of wages paid to the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) and a tax wage report to the Social Security Administration (SSA).

IRS Form 942 (Employer's Quarterly Tax Return for Household Employees) may be used for this purpose.

The employer must also give the worker a W-2, a wage and tax statement, by January 31 after the year in which the wages were paid.

Although some employers may not report a household worker's wages at the request of the worker, it should be noted that the employer, not the employee, is held liable for reporting the wages. The nonpayment of Social Security taxes for household workers may be detected when a household worker retires and applies for Social Security benefits.

If the worker reports that he or she worked for a certain employer and there is no such information in Social Security records, SSA will ask the employer for information.

In addition, IRS may impose several penalties, including 10 percent of the back taxes owed.
