Jackets take second loss at Richmond Madison

RICHMOND—Richmond Madison pulled out to an 8-0 lead at Richmond and held that lead on 6-8 about one Nicholas County last Friday night.

NCHS Head Coach Robbie Barr said the Jackets were near the goal line on a couple occasions, but failed to push for the score.

"We just haven't had any breaks this season," Barr said. "It's a well known fact, Nick does play a lot in winning in any sport. We just haven't gotten the bounce as far."

The Fayetteville-Nicholas County

with 108 yards rushing on 17 carries as the Jackets finished the game with 103 yards on the ground.

"You should be able to win a game with over 100 yards rushing," Barr lamented. "But, we just haven't been able to score."

Fayetteville caught three of six completions by NCHS quarterback Todd Day, good for four, one and 13 yards. Fayetteville finished the night with 130 yards total offense.

Day's six completions in 14 attempts were good for 54 yards.

Sam Irvin led the Bluejackets' defense with 12 tackles, including nine solo stops.

Scott Allison had to punt eight times for Nicholas County, with Madison breaking through for two blocks, and one had snap, kept Nicholas County backed up all night.

Frank Johnson rushed nine times for 44 yards and Irvin finished the night with 30 yards on carries.

"We played a good defense, but the offense sputtered at times," Barr said. "We would make a little ground... or have a big gasser only to have a penalty bring the play back. That cost us in several situations against Madison."

"We did have good field position in the fourth quarter, and probably should have scored in the last five minutes, but just couldn't get to the end zone."

Barr, although his team is 0-2 on the year, points to youth and inexperience as things to watch.

"I do hope people understand that all of our young men are trying very hard. For many of these young men this is their first experience at playing high school football."

"It just takes time to build a program and for the boys to get experience."

"Experience is and will be the key to having a successful season. We'll just have to let the players develop."

Mason County is next for the Jackets will hit the road Friday night, September 4, for their third straight road game.

Mason County, coached by former NCHS Head Coach Ben Humphrey, will enter the game with a 1-1 mark.

"We've scored Mason County and they have wanted us," Barr said. "We know we'll line up head-to-head when you play against them."

"Our team respects that fact and they respect him (Humphrey) as a coach. We'll just have to go into the game and give it our best effort."

Senior Chris Hatcher, who went down with a leg injury against Fleming County on NCHS season-opening 1.5-1 loss, was back at practice, last Monday.

Hatcher missed the entire Madison game and according to Barr is going at about 75 percent.

"We hope to have him back playing defense for us this week," Barr said. "But, probably, he will not play any offense for us, at least against Mason County."

Barr is pleased with the support for the team this year, and hopes the support can continue. He

CHILDREN WHO WEAR GLASSES

Don't feel sorry for the child who wears glasses. Rather, be delighted that optical science has enabled this child to catch a fly ball, read the blackboard, or follow the flight of a bird. Glasses may, for the first time, allow this child to read comfortably. For what a child can't see, he or she can't catch and can't read.

Children don't always know that they are not seeing properly. Printed letters are nothing but frustrating scrawlings. Parents should make an effort to notice whether a child is squinting, sits very close to the TV set, or avoids games that require visual skills. If the parents have delayed having the child's eyes examined professionally, detection of these obvious symptoms or vision difficulty should be sufficient cause to mandate making an appointment. Vision problems - with or without recognizable or overt symptoms - can impede development in many ways if not corrected.

Consider having your child's eyes examined in time for school.
