Sexton's changes owners, names and brands

Sexton's Ashland has taken on a new name and new owners. Beatty's 76 now occupies the familiar location on West Main Street. Linda Fleming/Photo

Accutran, Inc. to have new home

 The Carlini-Murray Deal
 January of this year, was the beginning of a special program funded by the State of Kentucky for people with handicaps, or other disabilities. Accutran's JobNow program is a supportive employment program designed for people with handicaps to help in training for job placement. The program serves Nicholas, Bourbon, Harrison, Scott, and Clark counties. Employment counselor Anthony Johnson said, "We have people in our program with hearing problems, vision, mental mild retardation, to borderline mental retardation. "Training entrance into this program would depend on the availability of these people have in getting around." After training, these individuals are placed in a job program. For the first 90 to 99 days after employment, these people are paid by the Office of Vocational Rehabilitation. The only obligation to the employer after this time would be a

 While driving down West Main Street, a person might take notice that Sexton's Ashland location is no longer around. Beatty's 76 has taken its place. When customers pull up to the gas pumps, they may be in for a surprise. This petite, blond, and blue-eyed person, will not only fill your car with gas, she can plug tires, and maintain other jobs. Yes, that person is a she. Joe and Carla Beatty, owners and managers of the station, decided the old name needed a new look. Alvin Sexton, Carla's father, previously owned the station. On August 1, 1987, the Beattys purchased the station. Carla said, "We changed gas companies because 76 is cheaper to operate on than Ashland."

Being an stranger to oil, grease, and dirt, Carla did not mind helping her husband around the station. "I worked here two years before we bought it. My dad taught me to change the oil in my car, and I don't mind doing it, but I wouldn't want to do anybody else's," Carla added. The Beattys were married on March 25, 1978, and they have one daughter, Christy. "Our little girl is 8 years old, but she does not come down here because the station very much, she says she gets bored," Carla said. The members of the Beatty family were all born and raised in Carlisle. "We know just about everyone, the people here are all friendly. "Joe Joe and myself work here, with dad helping whenever we need him," added Carla. The station opens at 6:30 every morning, and closes around 9:30 every night. Carla added that the station will probably close a little earlier in the winter. Beatty's 76 offers most mechanical work, gas, or car washes, and accepts major oil credit cards. The station provides its customers with personal service and a smile.
